The Board of Education is a group of hard-working citizens under the careful guidance of superintendent Richard H. Escott. Board members are John Peterson, president; John Solverson, vice-president; Dorothy Beardmore, secretary; Robert Williamson, treasurer; and Don Iodice, Max Mallon, Peter Vernia, trustees.

These dedicated people are the highest administrative body in the Rochester school district, and they have the final say on all proposed changes affecting the schools. They have recently made possible the building of two new junior high schools, one adjacent to Adams and the other down on Auburn Road, to keep up with the growing population of the community.
administration keeps school running on schedule

No, I don't know the name of that song.

Mr. Mauti and Mrs. Ryan rejoice over another perfect attendance!

Mr. Hawes reflects his views on the trophy case.

Funny how some kids can get sick one hour a day, every day!

"What do you mean you've never heard of Hamtramck?"

I should have brought my "Ms. Fix-It Kit!"

With over fourteen hundred students to keep track of every day and many other responsibilities, you might begin to think that perhaps being a high school principal is not all wine and roses. But with the help of Mr. Mauti and Mr. Piasecki, our assistant principals, Mr. Hawes once again did a superb job of keeping Adams High School running smoothly.

The ladies who helped these successful men immensely throughout the year were Mrs. Cotton, Mr. Hawes' secretary; Mrs. Gowanlock, Mr. Mauti's secretary; and Mrs. Moore, our telephone receptionist. They played a very important part in maintaining the smooth flow of paper work in and out of the office.

Mrs. Borck had quite a job on her hands, trying to keep track of where who was when. The new attendance policy simplified this, however, by eliminating the need for differentiation between excused and unexcused absences, and doing away with parents calling in.

In the counseling office, Mrs. White and Miss Peters aided our counselors greatly. They took care of counseling appointments, college applications, SAT scores and a multitude of other goodies. Their efficient work and smiling faces were tremendously appreciated by everyone.

Our administration deserves a big hand for doing such a fine job.

guess what's cooking now?

A lot of credit has to be given to the custodians and the cafeteria staff. After all, they pick up where your mother leaves off - cleaning up after your messes, washing dirty towels from gym classes, shining scuffy floors, and cooking nourishing hot meals.
The custodians work from seven in the morning till midnight, part of the summer and all of the school year. That goes to show what kind of effort goes into keeping our school sparkling. And it does sparkle. Visitors are repeatedly impressed by its cleanliness.

The cafeteria staff works all morning preparing lunch. How would you like to make five hundred lunches each day? That may give you an idea of what these hard-working ladies go through all year. A la carte breakfast is also served each morning.

counselors answer students' cries for help

This year Adams experimented with a new method of scheduling - college style, with the students choosing the hour and teacher as well as the class. While an extremely popular process, it was somewhat confusing the first time around; never before was a counselor's help so valuable!

For those who wanted a change in schedule, needed help in deciding on a college, sought advice on a personal problem, or just wanted a plain old miracle, the counseling staff was there to save them. To Mrs. Bogard, Mr. Kemp, Mr. Parks, and Mrs. Ryan, skipping lunch and working late was just part of their job. Not once did they hesitate to become personally involved with one of the many students; and though it may be seldom said . . . thank-you!!!

"You want me to cancel all your appointments?"

Student problems have Mrs. Ryan "stymied."

Mr. Kemp completes a student's college application.

Mrs. Bogard figures out yet another schedule.

Miss Lilly discusses a student problem with the parent.

Mr. Busch gives Jim Stallard some sincere advice.

Mrs. White makes her seventeenth schedule change of the day.

I know I put that pass somewhere.

This is supposed to save time?

Mrs. Green is always willing to help.

Here's a car for only $$ 45$.

If you read one book or magazine every day for thirty years, you would still fall 63 volumes short of finishing everything presently in the Adams library. Perhaps this gives you some idea of the amount of material Mrs. Green and Mrs. Johnston have to keep track of and the magnitude of the tasks facing them. In addition to this, the library operates a copying machine and maintains a career and college information room for the benefit of the students.

Though many people do not realize it, the audiovisual section is also part of the library. Mrs. Chase, our audio-visual director, has organized a set of tape recordings, slide transparencies, and films which students may use for research and study.

The overall picture is one of a great library.

Mrs. Johnston offers valuable reference to an inquiring senior.

an expanded vocabulary spells english department

The English department provided Adams with a large variety of interesting and educational courses this year. Ranging from Basic English Grammar to Shakespearean Drama, students could choose the classes that they found most to their liking.
New this year was the opportunity for sophomores to select ten week courses instead of a full year of English II requirement. Their choices include Drama, Short Story, Non-fiction, Poetry, Composition, and Novel.

Mr. Berube was a new addition to the teaching staff. The outstanding teachers were one of the main reasons English classes were considered many students' favorite subject, and the knowledge gained from them will enrich their lives for years to come.

Young man . . . give me that knife!!!

Ahh - cut it out you guys!!

highlander staff creates best seller at adams

This book ought to keep them busy in yearbook class for awhile.

What is Journalism III? What did that class do all year? They put together this yearbook, the 1973 Highlander. Easy? Not quite. The finished product you are holding took a lot of hard work and mad scrambling to meet imperative deadlines.

There are quite a few improvements in the book this year, the most obvious of all being the switch to a larger, college-size book. Compare it to last year's book and you'll notice that it's half an inch wider and an inch taller.

This year's Highlander staff was composed of 30 industrious students all working diligently under the intrepid leadership of our advisor, Joseph K. Piasecki. Lynne Kamrath was the editor-in-chief, with Jenny Hoffmann as layout editor, Lynne Mobley as literary editor, Sharon Jacques preparing the index, and Steve Allen, Scott Headbloom, Terri Huddleston, and Karen Schultz as business co-ordinators.

We think this Highlander is the best of the four editions; but you'll be better convinced if you keep reading. Turn the page!!!

I wonder if I'm doing this right!

These "Letters to the Editor" are getting better all the time.

power of the pen

The Piper was on the move again this year, working hard to report accurately and interestingly the happenings around school. One thing that was different this year was that everyone on the staff had previously had Journalism I. This meant that they were better equipped journalistically to deal with the menagerie of events constantly taking place at Adams.

Mrs. Mastovich was the advisor again, with Tony Dimambro, editor-in-chief; Kerr Moyer, news editor; Fritz Stifler, sports editor; Ánn Beattie, éditorial editor; Carol Prior, feature editor; and Kim Axler, advertising manager.

math -  \{a new set of ideas\}

Many strange things have been happening in the math department. Postulates, theorems, axioms, and equations have been mysteriously popping up in students' homework.

From Project Math to Algebra III and Trig, students have been finding out what math is all about. Two new teachers, Mr. Parse and Mr. Treat, were added to the department last fall; in addition to their vaults of knowledge, Mr. Pasbjerg's and Mrs. Krull's scholars could also draw upon the resources of two student teachers, Miss Bailey and Miss Beausir. They were here until Christmas, hoping to transfer a wealth of information to their students.

For the first time this year, full year math courses were broken up into ten week sections. This allowed greater flexibility in scheduling, and was hence very popular. It is safe to say that the mathematics department at Adams is an integral part of the curriculum.

Boy, did I fool you!!!

It is intuitively obvious, class.

This year brilliant scientists-to-be chose from ten week courses in many specialized fields. The varied curriculum and patient, guiding hands of the teaching staff joined together to bring Adams students a science department comparable to none.
With the valuable addition . of Mr. Bissell, who knows to what pinnacles of success Adams scientists may climb? Watch out there, world, Galileo II is on the way!

Mrs. Nelson hunts for a lost frog.

The social studies department did it again. It went down in history as one of the most important and informative sections in the academic program this year. Not only can a student learn about prehistoric cave drawings, Charlemagne, and the Crusades, but he can also learn why his brother hates his sister, what's lacking in his study habits, and why he and Nancy are such a good pair.

With the new addition of Mr. Niedzwiecki, the department.was composed of eight learned staff members who altogether taught classes to three-quarters of the student body.

The mock convention is always the highlight of the year for the government classes. It was held near Easter for the first time this year instead of the traditional date in June.

With such a wide variety of interesting courses, who could help but be fascinated with what the social studies department has to offer?

ja, sí, da, oui, foreign languages did it again

How would you like to learn a totally different language? Starting at the beginning of the language program, with a completely new vocabulary to comprehend and perhaps a strange alphabet too, foreign language students have many more goodies to look forward to. Where else do you learn about famous Spanish artists, great German rulers, or popular French literature?

The Spanish classes are now under a three-year program, which Mrs. Torres and Mrs. Nash soon hope to expand to four. They expect every Spanish student to be able to say ¡Hola! ¿Qué tal? perfectly by the end of the year.

Mr. Pazevic teaches both French and Russian, stressing the language, culture, history, and civilization of the two countries. The Russian program is currently only two years long, whereas the sequence of French classes runs up to five.

If northern Europe is your interest, there are German classes taught by Mrs. Snow. She promotes the study of German language as well as its culture up through the fifth year. Her classes always do some singing, too.

Once again the foreign language department has proved a boon to the education available at AHS.

Today's going to be MUCHO exciting!

Mrs. Torres introduces culture to her Spanish class.

What do you mean you don't know how to conjugate a verb?

Mrs. Snow helps a bewildered student.

Come on now - you can do better than that!

Mrs. Montgomery, I'd rather do it myself!

I think it needs a wider mat.

students try new forms of creative expression

The art department expanded its program to include another related subject for the first time this year photography. It was given in two ten week sections, the first being Basic Photography, which taught the students how to operate a camera and judge a few elementary aspects of picture composition. When a student had completed this course he could elect Black and White Photography, which stressed composition and lighting in more detail.

Many of the old classes were back again, and some, such as Printmaking and Drawing & Painting, returned as semester courses instead of ten weeks. New also was the two-hour block, enabling Jewelry students to work on their projects for a longer time span without interruption.

Mrs. Montgomery and Mr. Spitzer built us a raku kiln in the southwest courtyard for ceramics, a great asset to the departmental facilities. Many art students displayed their work at Arts ' $n$ ' Apples in September, and several gave demonstrations on the potter's wheel. There was, of course, the Christmas Art Sale, an annual project to raise funds for new art materials. So besides being creatively inclined, a large number of Adams art students also actively participated in community art projects.

home ec whips up another successful year

Just a pinch of arsenic

Can you sew on a button correctly, put in a hem, cook a gourmet meal, or just manage the basics of keeping yourself fed and clothed? These are only a few of the many things students are taught in Home Ec classes.

Headed by Mrs. Fisk and Mrs. Henderson, the department did its best to teach students how to save money and use their abilities to the best advantage. Future homemakers also learned to survive on a set budget, a preparation for living on their own.
A new program instituted this year was operation of the "Highland House," a restaurant for the teachers managed and run by students. This was meant to give them experience in managing a restaurant.

The home economics department came through again!

the world of business beckons students

When someone says "Business Department", you immediately think of typing and shorthand, right? Well, this year's program included a lot more than just those basics - in particular, three new advanced programs in two hour block sessions. They were Distributive Education, Steno-Lab, and Clerk-Typist. These classes were like an actual office, teaching students about office machines and filing in supplement to building additional typing and shorthand skills.
Mr. Rosenberg was new this year, and besides teaching the Distributive Education class he managed the Amble Inn store. The store offered Adams students a chance to buy supplies before and after school and on lunch hour, while giving the Distributive Ed. students experience in running a store.

The co-op program was revised this year, requiring now that a student elect a class related to his job in order to receive credit. The object behind this was the hope that the student would benefit in the future by having a better background in his/her chosen field.

Mr. Leonard counsels a future secretary.

the halls are alive with the sound of music

Higher, girls!

E-i-e-i oooo

If a stranger ever got lost in Adams High School, he or she could have just followed the sound of singing and arrived in Mrs. Kitchen's music class.
The vocal music department offered courses for everyone, whether they were accomplished singers or not. Anyone blessed with a good voice could put it to use in the Girls' Concert Choir or in the Men's Glee Club. Those who enjoyed singing but were not musically gifted could still take General Music, or even Music Appreciation, which dealt mainly with the mechanics of music and the works of famous composers.
For students with more experience, Advanced Theory was offered. This class held a chamber concert every few weeks, giving the students a chance to show off their individual talents on instruments ranging from recorder and violin to harmonica and guitar Those not instrumentally inclined just listened and observed.

The choir was able to purchase new robes with the money from the 1972 production of "Hello Dolly!" They presented "The Sound of Music" in April of this year, and hope to start a tradition of spring musicals at Adams.

Singing the impossible song.

another booming year for the band

All four of Adams' bands worked diligently this year, practicing many long hours under the competent direction of Mr. Charles Moss. The JV Band, composed mostly of freshmen, showed the most marked improvements; hopefully many of its members will advance to Varsity next year

The Varsity Band doubled as a marching band and put on some excellent halftime shows at the fall football games. Fire batons were used by the twirlers in several new routines.

Reminiscent of the "Big Band Era" is the stage band, well known to most of the students at Adams and much of the community as well. They were hired to play at many social functions, among them parties at the Elks Club and Addison Oaks.

And for the forty-five most talented musicians, there was the Wind Ensemble. They gave several concerts at different points throughout the year and were our representatives at contests for all of Michigan. Few people realize the amount of time and effort that goes into the preparation of even one selection; let's have a big hand for the band!

physical fitness: a continuing trend at adams

Mrs. Sicora packs a powerful kick.

This little piggy went to market

In this year's physical education department, the ten week courses became more and more popular. A wide variety of classes were offered so that students could choose the particular sports or activities they would most like to participate in. Among the girls' classes taught by Miss Craven and Mrs. Sicora were archery, tennis, field hockey, soccer, track, and swimming.

Under the instruction of Mr. Swift, Mr. Cuppy, Mr. Summerhays, and Mr. Niedzwiecki, the boys' phys-ed department was highlighted by a variety of activities from which they, too, could choose. In addition to some of the same sports the girls enjoyed, they could also elect physical fitness, golf, and wrestling.
And for those students who wished to mix socializing with exercise, co-ed classes were again offered. Altogether, the gym department is a definite asset to the educational program at Adams.

craftsmen develop new talents in industrial arts

But Mr. Lawrence, when I sat on it, I fell right through!

Through the Industrial Arts classes, student ideas turn into student projects with the careful guidance of the teachers. In drafting, students learn to put their mechanical ideas on paper with the help of rulers, compasses, and number two pencils; mechanics teaches them to design and operate machinery in automotive and shop surroundings. The electronics classes strive to develop an understanding of electricity in all sorts of complex devices. Also included in the program is woodshop, and the new addition of classes from chair caning to rough carpentry.

All in all, the industrial arts department at Adams does an excellent job of preparing students for future aspirations in the field.

vocational school: a step toward higher learning

Once again vocational school offered opportunities for students to become skilled in a certain trade, or just get started in one of the many programs offered before entering college. Sixty-five students were involved in the program, which ranged from auto body repair and building trades to child care and clothing services. Several areas new since last year were auto mechanics, cosmetology, welding, and fluid power.

Besides those students who participated in morning vocational school and took only a couple of classes at Adams, others went from 2:15 to 6:15 in the afternoon. The fact that these diligent students elected to attend long after the regular school day was ended is testimony to the immense success of the program.

vocational adjustment is a worthwhile experience

Under the competent guidance of Mr. Swift, the vocational adjustment department studied practical subjects to prepare students for meaningful employment in adult life. The ultimate goal is employment for everyone; the means utilized to prepare for this are actual work experience, vocational training at the Northeast Oakland Vocational School, and personal guidance.

Mr. Swift had a complete home ec set-up in room 227 to teach students cooking and other housekeeping skills to supplement what they were studying at the vocational high school. We congratulate Mr. Swift for making the program such an outstanding success.

Mr. Swift lends a helping hand.

adams' students rally to support their teams

Since it was held second and third hours, almost everyone was present at the Homecoming assembly to yell for the spirit stick and fire the team up for victory. Enthusiastic juniors won the stick, with seniors taking second and sophomores third.

Next the court representatives were escorted to seats in front of their class bleacher sections. The freshmen chose Barbara Ball and Ann Marie Long; the sophomores were represented by Pat Fox and Shari Joyce; the junior court consisted of Sue Gardels and Leslie Mason. Last came the seniors, one of whom would be crowned queen on Saturday: Patty Hunt escorted by Harry Kablak, Sue Jacobson escorted by Mark Mason, and Caryn Cramer escorted by Ross Wilson. Also on the court were our foreign exchange students - Elizabet Schultz accompanied by Bill Church and Asuncion Rivera accompanied by Joe Hunstad. Following presentation of the court John Howie and Mark Gaubatz, co-captains of the football team, gave corsages to the varsity cheerleaders.

Then came the crowning of Mr. Irresistible. Ben Stubblefield received a gold crown for the freshman class; since no sophomores participated, two were chosen from the junior class - Rick Gibbard and Ray Nicholson (Chopper). Bill Paris was the senior no girl could resist.
Highlighting the assembly was performance of the skits. Winners were the seniors for their hilarious presentation, with sophomores ranking second and freshmen third. To tie the spirit of the whole assembly together, the entire student body sang the fight song with unrivaled vigor and enthusiasm.

an exciting and memorable day for all

October 14th was a beautiful, crisp, sunshiny day, just perfect for Adams Homecoming. The festivities began with a parade of the floats from Halbach Field down Walton to Rochester High School. First place float went to the juniors for "Adams' Golden Hammer," second place to the sophomores with "Bird in a Gilded Cage," third to the seniors and last to the freshmen.

Halftime was highlighted by the crowning of Sue Jacobson as Homecoming Queen. The other girls on the court were all present with their escorts. Music was supplied by the marching band, and the floats were paraded around the field for those spectators who had missed them before.

The football team put forth its best effort, but lost to Birmingham Groves. Even so, nothing could spoil the day that had begun so nicely, and no one went home feeling that Homecoming ' 72 had been less than a total success.

The Highlander fans get fired-up?

homecoming dance is "stairway to heaven"

"Stairway to Heaven" was the theme of this year's Homecoming Dance. Sponsored by the student council, the dance was a perfect end to an exciting Homecoming Week.

The cafeteria was attractively decorated with silver stars and twisted yellow streamers draped from the ceiling. Punch and cake were served to everyone who attended. The music, furnished by " 1776 ", was entertaining and easy to dance to.

Students could attend the dance stag this year as long as they were formally or semi-formally dressed. Not many people came stag, but for those who did, the idea worked out well.

The Homecoming dance, one of the biggest social events of the year, proved successful and enjoyable for everyone who came.

students participate in numerous assemblies

Can you sing, can you act, can you play an instrument, are you athletic? Do you have any talent at all? Or do you just enjoy a good time? If so, you were probably involved in (or watched with interest) one of the many assemblies throughout the year.

During the football season, pep and spirit were sparked at the Homecoming and Rochester game assemblies. Also in the fall four parachutists came out of a clear noon sky into a crowd of students across the street.

Next came winter and the holiday season. The music department put on both the Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies, with clubs participating and presenting skits. In February we saw some talent and a revival of the fifties in the Winter Carnival assembly. Larry McLean came to entertain the crowd with his folk singing, and music lovers enjoyed the Oakland University Jazz Band later on. To the delight of many, the hypnotist was back. And of course, at the end of the year were the honors assemblies, one honoring senior achievements and the other announcing candidates for NHS and other underclassmen awards.

With all these assemblies to choose from, there was something to interest everyone.

Mass confusion hits Adams.

a slight case of murder .

Lisa shocks the two with news of Rob's proposal.

On December 7th and 9th there was a "Slight Case of Murder" in the Rochester High School Auditorium.

Really, it wasn't as you might think, but only our amateur senior actors and actresses putting on the senior play.

It's about Remy Marko (Bob Padilla), a prominent brewery owner, who in his efforts to go "legit," has a lot of unexpected problems - among which are unpaid debts, his daughter (Lisa Steele) engaged to "the law" (Rob Caldwell), and a wife (Debbie Johnson) who wants to run an elegant household with more cultured servants. Right now, the Markos employ two brutes - Mike, the butler (Scott Horstman) and Guiseppe, the cook (Tim O'Connor). Lefty (Mike Baker) is Remy's left-hand man. Another "small" problem is Douglas (Steve Joyce) whom everybody thinks is a pain in the neck until he finds $$ 500,000$. But the biggest problem of all is the four corpses upstairs in the closet

Through the direction of Mrs. Montgomery and her assistant, Sarah Carlson, the play was a great success. Deb Johnson said it perfectly in a presentation to Mrs. Montgomery - "We know our class isn't exactly traditional

It isn't often that you see people like Mr. Hawes and Mr. Mauti dressed in sweat socks and baggy shorts, running around the gym playing basketball. In fact, it only happens once a year - at the Varsity-Faculty Basketball game.

This year's game provided fun and entertainment, not only for the spectators, but also for the team. The faculty team was comprised entirely of male teachers, counselors, and administrators, such as Bouncing Berube, PeeWee Parks, and Tricker Treat. The opposing team was made up of Varsity Club members who were not members of the real basketball team.

Six Faculty cheerleaders, dressed in nightgowns and flaunting ponytails, rooted for their side while six Pep Club members acted as cheerleaders for the Varsity Club. Mr. Fliss (alias Dr. Welby) was the high scorer for the Faculty team and Steve Belanger was high scorer for Varsity Club.

The game was held during fifth and sixth hours on Wednesday, February 14th, and ended in a 55-55 tie.

exchange students are from france and philippines

We had two foreign exchange students at Adams this year; both were girls, one from France and one from the Philippines.

Seventeen-year-old Asuncion Rivera arrived in the USA on August 25th from Tuzon, the Philippines. Asuncion stayed with Diane O'Dowd; she noticed little difference between American and Filipino cuisine, but she wasn't at all used to such cold weather. Though she had seen snow before, she had been afraid to touch it!
Sixteen-year-old Elizabet Schultz arrived from Strasbourg, France, on August 7th to live with Karen Schoch. She loved Americans and our school; she also liked the food, particularly corn, which they don't eat in France.
Both our exchange students agree that their visit to the U.S. was worthwhile and very educational. We are all glad they could come for this year, and hopefully they will be back again one day.

Is this the way Picasso started?

seniors laugh or cry together on election night

The early news projection pleases Paul.

Headed by Mr. Piasecki, the election night gathering was a success, with over a hundred people attending. Cap's TV lent us five televisions, and each was tuned to a different channel so students who came could choose the station (or the announcer) they liked best.

The gathering in the cafeteria on November 7th was planned mainly for seniors, to give them a chance to watch and discuss election returns with other interested students; but underclassmen were welcome to attend.

To show the spirit of the elections, students were allowed to set up headquarters, one for George McGovern and one for Richard Nixon. Here students backing either candidate could get together and discuss their views on the issues as the election returns came in. A tally was kept on the chalkboard of which states each candidate had carried, so that the as-yet results were available at a glance.

Richard Nixon won the election. But the students who attended gained more than a president; they gained a valuable experience as well.

winter carnival - thrills, chills, and excitement!

"Jitterbugs."

Friday, February 9th was a first for Adams. First time you caught most of the girls in bobby socks and calflength skirts. First time you caught a lot of greasers rumbling in the cafeteria. First time you got to see an excellent display of student talent free. What a day!

Friday and Saturday were the Winter Carnival, a revival of the 1950's and their trends. On Friday, the student body wore costumes from that era and attended an afternoon talent show of modern as well as fifties talent. On Saturday night Joe hopped in his jalopy to pick up Betty Lou, who was all dolled up to go to the Sock Hop. When they arrived, the Früt entertained them with sounds from the fifties.

You can always depend on the weather to ruin the best-laid plans, and it did just that the carnival weekend: outside activities were planned but not held due to a lack of snow and ice.

Student Council was responsible for planning these eventful two days. And when you laugh at the strange styles and mannerisms of the fifties, remember - the day will come when high schoolers of the 1990's will laugh at what's happening now!

Lori and Mr. Cuppy do the hop.

Determination.

Go!

Watch out - your shoelace is untied.

See that blonde behind us?

The 1972 Adams Varsity Football team finished the season with a 1-8 record. This record doesn't do justice to the monumental efforts they put into every game and the amount of training they went through.
The team had a new coach this year, Mr. Niedzwiecki, previously from Centerline, St. Clement's. His assistant coaches were Mr. Greitz, Mr. Rutawski, and Mr. Orchard. They won their first game against Clarkston thanks to the excellent coaching and the enthusiastic efforts of all the players.
Pat Monaghan made first team all league at the Metro-Suburban Conference, for defensive end. With the loss of only seven seniors, Mr. Niedzwicki is very optimistic about the upcoming varsity team.

Nick Twomey surges ahead for another touchdown.

jv and freshmen: bright hopes for the future

Adams gridders struggle for extra yardage.

It's amazing what a little hard work will do!

The JV football team had a very productive season, finishing with a 5-3 record. They came close to being the champions of the Metro-Suburban JV league, losing to Utica Eisenhower only in the final week of league play.

Coach Zelmanski from Centerline led the team in their fine performance. Although there were only eighteen guys on the team, they proved that it is quality, not quantity, that counts.

While the freshmen got off to a bad start, they fired up by the end of the season and beat Rochester; they ended with a 2-5-1 record. Coach Korompay feels the freshman team has the potential to improve the performance of Adams gridders in the upcoming years.

highlander harriers tie for league championship

The Adams Cross Country Team had a superb winning season last fall: the harriers tied for the league championship with Southfield Lathrup. Junior Steve Vizena led the 1972 team and was first in all dual meets.

The team, coached by Mr. Al Gierke, won seven dual meets while suffering only one non-league loss. Complementing the varsity record, the JV team took the league championship; they were led by Mike Curtis, who was league champ.

Adams should be proud to be represented by such a great cross country team.

Mark Miller gets edged out near the finish line.

golf team: par for the course

Concentration is the name of the game!

The golf team went co-ed for the first time this year, with Karen Escott the only girl on a previously all-boy team. Mr. Pasbjerg again coached both the varsity and JV teams, which finished with 6-18 and 1-2 records, respectively.

Mark Fifield was voted most valuable player by the rest of the varsity team; he maintained an average of 40 strokes per 9 holes throughout the season. Tom Drewes earned the Brown and Gold Award for his fine performance. And the rest of the team, while they were not honored individually, showed spirit and teamwork in working together for the benefit of the team.

pep, vitality, and enthusiasm - girls' tennis team

Yvonne stays on her toes.

Have you ever tried a backhand swing or an overhand smash? These are just a few of the techniques used in playing tennis, and this year's girls tennis team has put them to good use.

Even though they ended their season with a 4-3 record, the girls made an impressive first-year try. Because we are in a new league, the teams they played were no pushovers; but the girls proved that no team is too big to tackle. They always tried to keep Adams on top.
Coach of the team this year was Mr. Treat. He has great confidence and high hopes about next year. The girls participated in seven games, and went on to the regionals.

The girls' swim team winning another.

But Leslie - only ten laps to go!

Liz Stephens kicks up a storm.

The girls' swimming team ran into stiff competition this year in the new Metro-Suburban League, and they competed hard to earn their season record of five wins and two losses. They splashed to an important victory over Rochester, inspired by coach Karen Craven and co-captains Sharon Jacques and Adrienne Lusk. Third place in the league meet was a hardearned and well-deserved honor.

The team sent superb representatives to the first Michigan High School State Meet; they came home with Adams tied for tenth place. Point scorers included Adrienne Lusk, diving; Nancy Renius, freestyle; Mary Morgan, breaststroke; and Lisa Schillinger, backstroke.

This year's Adams tankers proved fast, skilled, and ever-improving in the MSAA league. The swimmers stroked to a $10 \mathrm{win}, 3$ loss record; captured a close first in the Rochester Relays; finished second in the league meet. These Highlanders, coached by Mr Cuppy and Mr. Lawrence, received added strength from the abilities of captains Kevin Lackie and Jim Hock.
Adams sent many fine representatives to the High School State Meet, including the freestyle relay team of Dan Page, Kevin Lackie, Bruce Sawhill, and Jerry Hoffman. Jerry and Bruce also competed in the 400 freestyle.

adams determination

always means success

Adams' wrestling team had a productive and successful season. Led by Coach Bissell, they achieved a perfect record of 15-0. The JV team was almost as successful with a 11-4 record.

The varsity team was led by Kevin Boyce, Paul Cornell, Jeff Whitfield, Ross Wilson, and Dave Marshall, the league champions who brought the trophy home. Adams tied with Grand Blanc in the district tournament, with Dan Steele, Paul Cornell, John Schiappacasse. Ross Wilson, Tom Farmilo, and Jeff Whitfield continuing on to the Regionals.

ski team slides through another victorious season

Gary takes a ride to the top.

Picture this: a snow-covered hill dotted with flags, and a skier gracefully winding through, never missing a turn, and always in perfect form. It looks easy, but if you have ever been on skis you know it is not as simple as it appears.

The Adams Ski Team was composed of skiers such as the one described above. Sponsored by Mr. Pasbjerg, the teams were again successful this year, and lived up to Adams tradition. There were four different ski teams - Boys' Varsity and JV, and Girls' Varsity and JV - all of which practiced hard, despite adverse weather conditions. It paid off, however, because Adams can boast an excellent ski team.

adams wins district championship by defeating rhs

Jerry Weller's always on the move!

Adams' Varsity Basketball Team finished their season with a 13-10 record.

The team brought back the first basketball trophy in Adams' history and won an exciting 58-55 victory over Rochester for the district championship. They went on to the regionals at Seaholm and lost to Royal Oak Dondero, only 50-48, in the closing seconds of the game.

Led by Captain Mike Baker and all-league selection Jerry Weller, Coach Parks' team finished with a 4-6 record in the league - and that was good enough for fourth place in the newly started Metro-Suburban League.

Adams' 1974 Varsity Basketball Team will give spectators the chance to see many familiar faces, with six of this year's top eight players as returning lettermen next year.

cagers exhibit ability by having victorious season

Coached by Mr. Orchard, the JV basketball team was one of our best hopes for the championship this year. Starting off with a victory over Romeo, the JV team continued its winning streak throughout the season.

Some of the best prospects for next year's varsity team are Frank Bell, Scott Cischke, and Fred Schimon. Of course, all of the members of the JV team are good, and we're sure our Big $V$ will be a winner next year.

The freshman team didn't have quite as good a season as they started out to have but they are by far one of our best freshman teams. With Kurt Carbonero, Chris Wentworth, and Cam Lusk as some of the best players, the freshman basketball team will certainly make next year's JV team an excellent representation of Adams.

Frosh cagers keep their eyes on the cheerleaders.

feminine technique applied to tedious sport

Just a silly centimeter longer!

The girls' basketball team went undefeated this year, and showed that they, too, could proudly represent Adams through fine sportsmanship and performance. They credited their great season to hard work and excellent coaching by Mrs. Sicora and captains Andrea Howes and Adrienne Lusk.

The girls proved that boys are not the only ones who can bounce a basketball. They put a lot of time, effort, and enthusiasm into practicing, and it certainly paid off well.

victory, victory - could they dig it? oh yeah!!

Sharon and Mo think of a "tall" joke!

and the cheerleaders roared on!

Try to imagine this scene: a basketball game - the last minute of the fourth quarter - a tie score - and Adams has possession. This game is a very important one; we have to win. Everyone is tense, with fingers crossed, and hearts beating out the "Highlander Beat." Now try to picture it without cheerleaders. Sorta tough, huh?

This scene, or one like it, is repeated innumerable times during the various seasons, and the cheerleaders make it even more exciting. Spirit is higher because of them.
This year's varsity cheerleaders were full of pep and enthusiasm. They consisted of eight girls: seniors Peggy Patterson, Sharon Jacques, Mo Jordan, Kim Axler, and Lori Davis; juniors Pat McKay, Tanyia Tooley and Renee Racette. Last summer some of them attended a cheerleading camp at Alma College. It proved to be a very rewarding experience as well as a lot of fun. They worked on both old and new cheers; they won first place ribbons and the coveted Spirit Stick for being the most spirited squad there.

The cheerleaders of '73 were indispensable to the teams and fans at all the games.

 is a great cheerleading squadDid you ever stop and wonder why the JV teams were so successful this year? Did it occur to you that not only their skill and unity made them winners, but also knowing that the JV cheerleaders were behind them $100 \%$ ? The girls' confidence in them may well have been the extra thrust they needed to be victorious.

The all-sophomore JV cheerleaders were Shari Joyce, Mary Marquis, Donna Koch, Pat Fox, Jan Johnson, Nancy Jacobson, Sue Smith, Cindy Flattery, and Sue Acton. Ever hear that? Well, here at Adams you can rest assured that our freshman cheerleaders are grrrreat! Not only united within themselves, they're united against losing. And they didn't lose very often, either.

This group of girls included Mary Conley, Marsha Studer, Lisa Joyce, Ann Long, Sue McLaughlin, Ruth Dupack, Nancy Baran, Carol Belanger, and Madonna Ciccone. We're going to be seeing a lot more of these girls during their next three years at Adams. But watch out! Their pep is contagious!

music departments keep adams in tune

Aside from the daily routine in class, the instrumental and vocal music departments had several "extra" activities. These included concerts by Varsity, JV, Wind Ensemble, and Stage Band, both at assemblies and in the evening. The vocal music department also presented concerts and assemblies, featuring the Treble Choir and the Boys' Glee Club, directed by Mrs. Kitchen. These activities provided students and parents a chance to see the groups "do their thing."

Courageous singers.

student council has new ideas . . . and courage to try

The dawning of a new school year found the Student Council filled with fresh ideas and goals.

When Mr. Gary Miller had been the sponsor before, he was now also the teacher; Student Council was made a class this year! By doing this, the problem of members not being able to attend meetings was solved; and since they met every day, there was more chance to discuss school problems and get things done. No one could call Student Council lethargic this year. Besides handling Homecoming and all the pep assemblies, they provided students with morning announcements over the P.A., and installed pop and snack machines in the lower lobby.

President was Bart Bedard; VP Rob Caldwell; treasurer Doug Behrendt; and secretary Caryn Cramer.

student achievement rewarded through nhs

N.H.S. Is that the Norwegian Hobo Society? Neurotic Hung-up Students? No, folks, it's the National Honor Society, alive and well and living at Adams High School.

To be invited to join the Honor Society, a student must have above a 3.0 average ( 3.5 for sophomores) and have accumulated a specified number of honor points for extracurricular clubs, sports, etc. The motto is "leadership, scholarship, character, and service," and the objective is to recognize those who are outstanding in these areas.

Sponsored by Miss Beverly Gibson, this year's Honor Society held an alumni reception for Homecoming and provided guides for the parent-teacher conferences. They also conducted the honors assemblies at the end of the year.

The officers were Patti Svenson, president; Nancy Trevillian, vice-president; Sharon Jacques, secretary; and Fritz Stifler, treasurer.

Although the Debate Team was not one of the most well-known teams at Adams, it was certainly one of the most active. The team participated in three leagues this year and was very successful in all. In the Metro-Suburban League, Dave Adamo and Phil Linsalata (affirmative) and Diane Harrison and Capri Fillmore (negative) and a very fine season, finishing second overall.

In the Tri-County League, Debe Mattison and Cory Siffring (affirmative) and Chri Cohoe and Capri Fillmore (negative) also finished in second place.

There was also a novice league, which was open to all members of the debate class. The class staged practice debates which helped them to gain valuable experience in the art of debate. The teacher and debate team coach, Mrs. Montgomery, had her hands full all year but her students thought it paid off very well.

Encouraged by the success of Perry's Pit Stop last year, Mr. Rosenberg's distributive education class decided to continue the operation of a school store; but it was modernized with the addition of blinking lights and rock music. They sponsored a contest to rename the store, and Mr. Fliss' catchy suggestion of the "Amble-Inn" won him a $$ 5$ prize.

The purpose of the store was to give Mr. Rosenberg's students experience in running a business. They followed a rotating schedule, so that each student got a chance to try his hand at sales, maintenance, bookkeeping, display, even at being manager. The popularity of the store is testimony to the success of the program, and every one of the students should now be ready to tackle the world of business.

students devote their time and effort to help others

Help-a-Kid and Help-a-Class. These programs almost explain themselves in their titles. But for a deeper explanation Help-a-Kid was the continuation of a worthwhile program that was started last year, involving students that were interested in the social sciences. The group was headed by Mr. Busch, the school social worker. Each person was assigned to an elementary school kid who had minor social problems or learning disabilities. The Adams students spent one or more hours talking to and counseling their kids every week. And at the end of their conferences the kids hopefully felt better about themselves, therefore doing better in their schoolwork.

An expansion of Help-a-Kid was Help-a-Class. This program was very similar; however, instead of working with an individual child, students involved in Help-aClass counseled an entire class. These programs were good learning experiences for everyone involved. The helpers could feel gratified in the changes they had brought about in the youngsters and glad that they could do something meaningful for someone else.

Peggy Patterson and Wendy Holforty prepare for "helping - a class."

adams students honored

 for their accomplishmentsThe Rotary Club of Rochester is a group of businessmen from the immediate area who meet once a week for a luncheon and business meeting with a presentation from one of the local businessmen.

The Junior Rotarians were established to provide communication between the high school youth and the "older generation" which keeps Rochester rolling. Two student representatives are sent from each high school each month. Students are chosen on the basis of outstanding character, moral fiber, and academic achievement.

The highest academic honor a senior can receive is to be a National Merit Semifinalist. The top one-half percent of America's graduating seniors are selected on the basis of scores from the standardized PSAT test, taken in the junior year; all the semifinalists must then take the SAT in November of their senior year to substantiate the earlier scores. If they seem to agree, the student is promoted to finalist standing and considered for a scholarship.

Adams had twice its share of semifinalists this year: one-half percent of 316 is one and a half, but we had three. Chip Johannessen, Karen Luik, and Lynne Mobley were the lucky trio. Two other students, Steve Gardels and Nancy Trevillian, were National Merit Commended Students.

Chairman this year was Jim Caldwell. He and several other experienced members competed in the tricounty chess tournament at Notre Dame High School, after playing matches with other schools. And in addition to just playing chess, they entertained spectators at the Christmas assembly with their interpretation of the World Chess Championship.

Not all language students considered French, German, Russian, and Spanish a chore, and the language clubs showed it. In fact, they were some of the largest clubs at Adams.

Mr. Pazevic sponsored the French Club again, and Cecilia Butler aided him as president in arranging the club's many activities. Besides the annual French night, they sponsored several apple sales and attended a French play in Detroit.

The Spanish Club was headed by president Margaret Brown and sponsored jointly by Mrs. Torres and Mrs. Nash. They helped organize the Mardi Gras dance and held a Spanish dinner to raise money for a summer trip to Spain.

Roxanne Friedli and Mrs. Snow led the German Club in their planning of the annual "Maifest". The club also took trips to Frankenmuth and German bazaars in the area.

With the help of president Dave Hartwig, Mr. Pazevic sponsored another language club: the Russian club. They were responsible for bringing the Russian dancers back to Adams, and the club itself attended the Russian ballet "Swan Lake."

up, up, and away to a skier's paradise

Last winter, while most people were hoping that the snow would melt and summer would begin, there was one club at Adams with the opposite view. Members of the Ski Club were overjoyed to see snow covering the ground, so they could hop on their skis and soar down the nearest slope.

This year's Ski Club was the largest club at Adams, with over one hundred members. Every week, weather permitting, the club went skiing at Pine Knob. But that was only one of the activities which the Ski Club undertook. For the first time, in January, about fifty members went on a ski trip to Nub's Nob. The club also held meetings throughout the year and sponsored two dances.

Officers of the Ski Club were Jill Gallmeyer, president; Ellen Sponseller, VP; Leslie Gallmeyer, secretary; and Barb Mayer, treasurer.

pep club inspires teams to victory

Although the Pep Club had trouble getting started, there were enough interested students to keep it alive once it got going. As before, they made signs for the halls to encourage support of our teams, but this year they also tried something new: they clipped from newspapers all the articles they could find about Adams. President Kathy Galloway kept them in a folder which she gave to Mr. Lawrence, the sponsor, at the end of the year - hopefully, if next year's and the forthcoming Pep Clubs continue the tradition, in a few years there will be a valuable set of archives for reference.

small clubs show big enthusiasm at adams

Interested in being a doctor? How about being a nurse? Or a medical technician or anything else medi-cally-oriented? This year's Medical Careers Club researched many of these jobs in hopes of finding one subject that they could study in future years. During the course of the year, they entertained many speakers who talked about medical careers. Also, they worked on projects to raise money for a children's cancer hospital in the south. Even though it was a small club, they got a lot accomplished under the sponsorship of Mrs. Mallon.

Another club with a small but active membership was the Photography Club. Mrs. Nelson taught them the basic elements of picture composition and darkroom procedure, and from there they went on to take pictures of practically everything. Many members branched out into much more difficult color photography; as a starter, they attended a show produced by Uni-Color, Inc. which explained the process of color photography and printing. From then on they were on their own, and they did very well.

The success of the Medical Careers and Photo Clubs proves that you don't need millions of members to have a worthwhile club.

art club adds a splash of color to adams

It has happened every year . . . you saw it this year too . . . around Christmastime . . . in the lower front lobby . . . homemade gifts . . . modern designs ceramics . . . original paintings . . . all kinds of art. Who put it on?
Appropriately, it was one of the many projects that the Art Club was involved in this year. The proceeds from the sale went towards buying new supplies for the art department.

Other activities of the Art Club were field trips to art museums and the Scholastic Art Exhibit, besides sponsoring three scholarships to the outstanding art students of the senior class.

This year's Art Club was sponsored by Mrs. Cohoe. Officers were Sue Gardels, president; Capri Fillmore, vice-president; Chri Cohoe, secretary; and Joanne Gaines, treasurer. Artistically interested or inclined students comprised the membership. Who knows they may be the Picassos of the 21st century!

The Rocket Club was launched into action at the control of Bruce Sawhill, president; Ted Hildum, vicepresident; Marc Meyer, secretary-treasurer; and Mr. Gibson, sponsor.
Meeting on alternate Wednesdays, the rocket club designed, built, and tested several of their own creations. One of their biggest accomplishments was an aluminum rocket with a chrome molybdenum nozzle.
Several members visited the Enrico Fermi Nuclear Plant and Dow Chemical while researching new rocketing techniques. Staying within federal laws and insuring safety, the Rocket Club was destined to be a booming success.
The Billiards Club, sponsored by Mr. Cicciarelli, was a group of pool fanatics who gathered each Friday to have a good time and match their skills against each other. The club consisted of members of every age, sex, and ability, and was a good place for beginners to learn the game and more accomplished players to improve and practice.

Village Billiards offered reduced rates to members again this year. The Billiards Club also held an 8 -ball tournament with trophies for the winners.

The club's officers were Tim Houlehan, president; John Bracewell, vice-president; and Kathy Kemp, secretary.

Among the projects of the Varsity Club were selling refreshments at basketball games, selling athletic equipment, and challenging the Adams faculty to an annual basketball game.

highlander lassies show timely accuracy

Did you ever see a Lassie, a Lassie, a Lassie? If you attended even one Adams Swim Meet, you probably have. Lassies were the girls who helped the meets run smoothly and effectively. Besides timing, holding the recall rope, and helping to score, the Lassies served as hostesses for the people in the stands. They accompanied the team to the Rochester Relays and went to the Girls' State Swim Meet.
Approximately twenty-five girls worked at each of the eight home meets this year, although there were over seventy Lassies altogether. Officers of the club were president, Sharon Jacques; vice-president, Adrienne Lusk; and secretary-treasurer, Karen Luik. These officers were responsible for training the Highlander Lassies and assigning them to their specific jobs.

This year's Mat Club of twenty-five girls did many things to keep the meets running smoothly. Sponsored by Mr. Bissel, assisted by Maxine Hoddinott and Claudia Mullenniex, the: Mat Club was responsible for making the wrestling meets a little more interesting.
The girls helped keep score, served refreshments, made signs, posted the score, and just ran around doing odd jobs that needed to be done. They also supplied the spirit at both home and away meets that inspired our matmen to achieve each victory and maintain an undefeated season.
This year's regional and district meets were held at Adams and were a big success because of the help the Mat Club provided.

spirit of '76 marches into action

Although they started out the year at the bottom of the heap, the freshmen were determined to show the upperclassmen that they could fend for themselves. Now they are one of the noisiest classes at school events, and one of the most active, besides being the largest.

Freshmen are always a little short of funds because they are just starting out as a class, but they strive to earn money whenever they can. Among the year's events was a dance sponsored by the class of ' 76 .

The officers chosen to lead them in their endeavors were Nick Twomey, president; Scott Avery, VP; Debbie Lamberson, secretary; and Ann Marie Long, treasurer.

sophomores tackle their second year

Sophomores are always right smack in the middle. They're not just starting in high school, like the freshmen; they're not rivalling the seniors, like juniors; and they're not really close to graduating, like the seniors. They're in the middle chronologically, and if they're not in the middle of every activity, they tend to go unnoticed.

This year's sophomores didn't seem to have any problem overcoming this "middleness." In fact, many seemed to find it the most comfortable place to be. They worked hard during Homecoming and came up with a second-place float and second-place skit, and they yelled their lungs out for the spirit stick.

Officers for the class of '75 were Andrea Lomaka, president; Sue Smith, vice-president; Donna Koch, secretary; and Anne Johnston, treasurer. Their enthusiasm and spirit for school participation inspired the rest of the class to work together and make this the best year the sophomore class ever had.

class of '74 climbs stairway to success

Juniors - the class of ' 74 - whatever you want to call them, this class is always going to be referred to as a powerful and surprising one.

Some of the events in which the juniors prevailed were during Homecoming week. The junior girls handed the seniors a 22-14 defeat in the B-G Bowl on Thursday. On Friday, the other three classes were deafened by the din of the juniors yelling their way to winning the spirit stick. And on Saturday, the juniors looked on amazed and extremely happy as their float - "Adams' Golden Hammer" - placed first in the float competition. (After coming in fourth for two years, it was a welcome change.)

All the events of this year are proof that the class of ' 74 by any other name will always be just as great.

class of '73 leaves many vivid memories behind

The Class of ' 73 was the first graduating class to attend four successive years at Adams. Beginning as the first freshman class in high school rather than junior high, the Class of ' 73 discovered that high school offered them opportunity for involvement, achievement, and personal satisfaction.

As four years rapidly passed, the Class of ' 73 increased in size to 316 individuals. They grew not only in size, but also in strength. A unique class, they possessed the motivation and ability to unite together in order to accomplish common goals.

This year's seniors had immensely diversified talents and abilities. Each member of the class was an individual with his own special interests. Some were sportsoriented while others perfected their artistic skills; still others expressed their musical ability or participated in clubs and school-related projects. They demonstrated their excellent academic capabilities by having the top fifty students accumulate a B+ average or better throughout high school.

One of their many accomplishments was the production of the senior play, "A Slight Case of Murder". It was a superbly executed comedy-satire which provided entertainment and enjoyment for the many who attended.

Starting this year with close to seven hundred dollars, the senior class also sponsored many other activities to raise money for graduation. Among them were a Sanders' candy sale and a number of dances.

The Class of ' 73 concluded a remarkable year with the senior prom at the Troy Hilton. They were the first Adams graduating class to hold their prom there, and it was an unforgettable evening filled with happiness and excitement.

Then June seventh arrived, when this years' seniors proudly went through the graduation ceremony at Baldwin Pavilion in their gold caps and gowns. Many were teary-eyed while others felt glorious and jubilant. No words could accurately describe the feeling those seniors experienced on June seventh, their last official day together as Adams' Class of 1973.

Tim O'Connor, president; Patty Hunt, secretary; Colleen O'Donnell, treasurer; Bob Padilla, vice-president.

twelve seniors honored for academic excellence

NANCY TREVILLIAN VALEDICTORIAN

The class of 1973 was led scholastically by Nancy Trevillian, who compiled over a four point average in her four years at Adams High School. Nancy's activities in high school included membership in the French Club, Girl Scouts, National Honor Society, Pep Club, Medical Careers Club, Future Teachers, and the Chess Club. Her interests include skiing, snowmobiling, swimming, and tutoring students in the area of Math. Nancy plans on attending Michigan State University next fall.

Pictured below in alphabetical order are the other eleven seniors honored for their academic excellence. All of these students attained at least a 3.7 point average in their four years at Adams.

A Short but Sweet Multiple Choice Quiz for the Class of '73

1. You're going away to college. You want to keep up with the hometown news. You should: (a) Ask the folks to send smoke signals (b) forget the whole thing (c) subscribe to The Rochester Eccentric (special college rates are available).
2. You're not going away to college. You're going to look for a job close to home. You should (a) Think it over carefully for a few years (b) do nothing the right job will find you (c) check the Help Wanted Ads in The Rochester Eccentric.
3. This year you'll be eligible to vote in local elections for the first time. You want to cast your vote intelligently. You should (a) Rely on your instincts (b) just vote the way your friends vote (c) read the thorough pre-election voter information in The Rochester Eccentric.
Answers: (c) is correct for each. Scoring: Three right, Excellent! Move to the head of the class! Less than three right, you could use a little help. Why not pick up a copy of The Rochester Eccentric and find out how helpful your local paper can be?

an army people want.

Before we could build the volunteer army, we had to start building a modern army.

We started by seeing that today's soldier spends his time doing what he should do best. Soldiering.

We started making his life more liveable, too. Pay begins at $$ 288$ a month. A long cry from the twenty-one bucks G.I. Joe found in his pay envelope.

And while his barracks may never resemble the Executive Suite at the Waldorf, we're trying to give them one reasonable feature. Privacy.

These changes are being made without making army life soft. On the contrary. Since he has more time for soldiering, today's soldier may go through rigorous courses known as Adventure Training.
(This can mean anything from free-falling 20,000 feet to a dot on the ground to retracing Lewis and Clark's Expedition.)

We're requiring brains as well as brawn from our new soldier. That's because we need as many computer programmers, electronic technicians and civil engineers as foot soldiers.

We're proud of the new army we're building. The Modern Volunteer Army. It'll be a more professional army. A more intelligent army. A more dedicated army.

And an army people want.

The 1973 edition of the Highlander (volume 4) was printed by the offset process on 232 pages of Warren's 80 lb . Lusto Dull by Taylor Publishing Company, Dallas, Texas. The cover is embossed first-quality vinyl on a 160 point hardboard. The die on the cover is highlighted by a black ink overtone. Senior portraits were taken by Bill Williams Studio, Royal Oak, Michigan. All the underclassman pictures were taken by Lyndon School Photos, Dexter, Michigan. All other pictures in the Highlander were taken by Bill Williams Studio and the students of Journalism III. Body copy is set in 10 point Optima; cut lines are 9 point Optima italic. Opening section quotes are 18 point Optima and all other headlines are 24 point Optima.

the daỳs come and go like : muffled and veiled figures sent : from a distant friendly party, but they say nothing, and if we i do not use the gifts'they bring, they carry them as silently away.

[^0]:    Why can't I use black thread?

[^1]:    Jill toots her flute.

[^2]:    Faculty cheerleaders are tons of fun!!!

[^3]:    Adams proves that the "wet head" isn't dead.

[^4]:    §wimmers take a breather between events.

[^5]:    What do I do now?

[^6]:    Eyes of anticipation.

[^7]:    Boy's Glee gleefully sings out.

[^8]:    Red rover, red rover,

[^9]:    Craig Mangold finishes another episode of Little Abner.

[^10]:    Juniors learn the Dewey Decimal system.

[^11]:    Seniors come chargin' through!
