many new faces, same dedication

The Rochester school system and Board of Education obtained a new superintendant this year, Dr. Erwin Crandell. Dr. Crandell, who came to Rochester from New Jersey, replaced Dr. Richard Escott who left to go to Jackson, Michigan.

There were also three new school board members this year. Barbara Barnes, Ronald Kevern, and Sheila Schmittle, who were elected last summer, the same election that reinstated the millage, which allowed us to bring back spring sports. The three new members worked with the old members, Dr. John Solverson, Dr. Max Mallon, Mrs. Elanore Monks, and Mrs. Carol Jacobs.

The school board made many decisions during the year, but one that affected Adams the most was the decision to let Adams try a trial smoking area and clinic. A sincere thanks from all Adams students went out to this dedicated group of leaders.

administration plays musical chairs

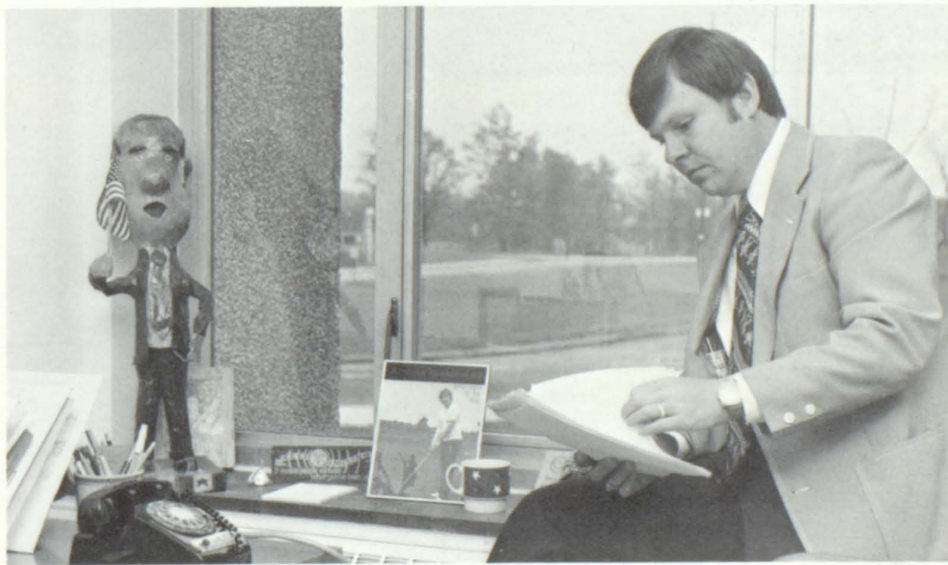

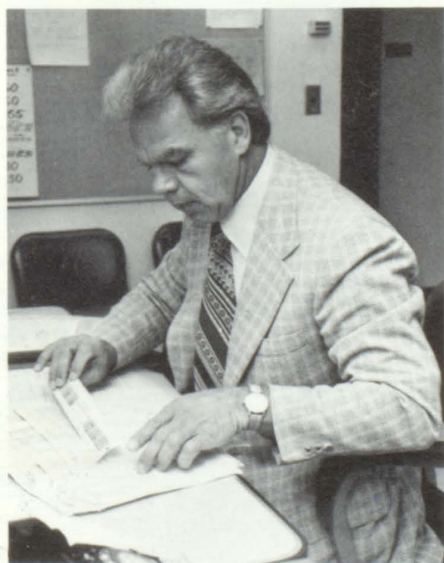

Three different principals in one year? That's what Adams had this year. Mr. Hawes, who had been principal of Adams since it opened left to work at the Board of Education in late November. He was temporarily replaced by Walter Cooper, head of transportation in the Rochester school. Then, in late February, Adams welcomed its new principal, George Cleaveland. Mr. Cleaveland has worked in Grand Rapids, New Jersey, and Connecticut.

Adams also received a new assistant principal this year. Mr. Urbin, who was previously at Rochester High School, replaced Mr. Mauti, who left to become a principal in another school system.

Mr. Piasecki, the only one of our principals who wasn't new, was left with the job of introducing the new men to the school, and the school to the new men.

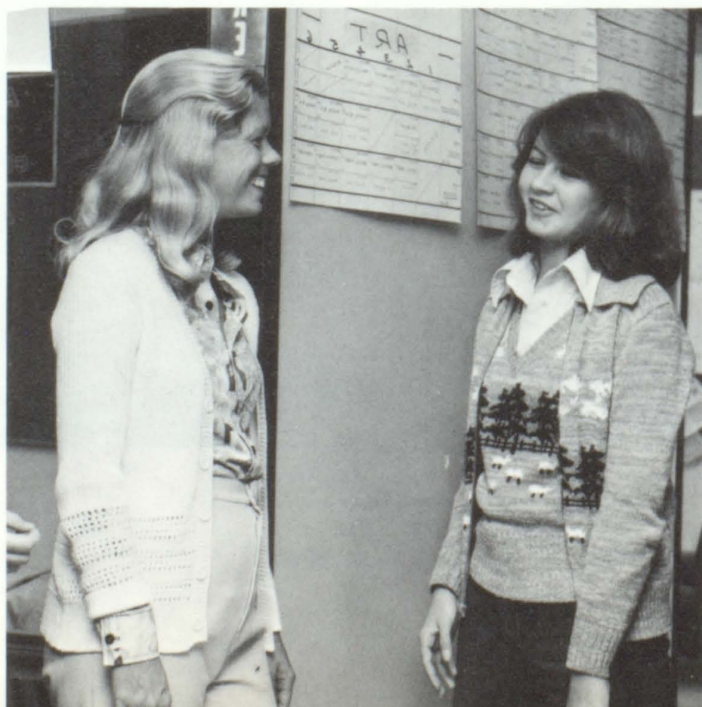

Adams seemed to survive the changes in authority we had this year. The question is, did the authority survive Adams? In any event, all the men did their best to give Adams the very best in supervision and direction.

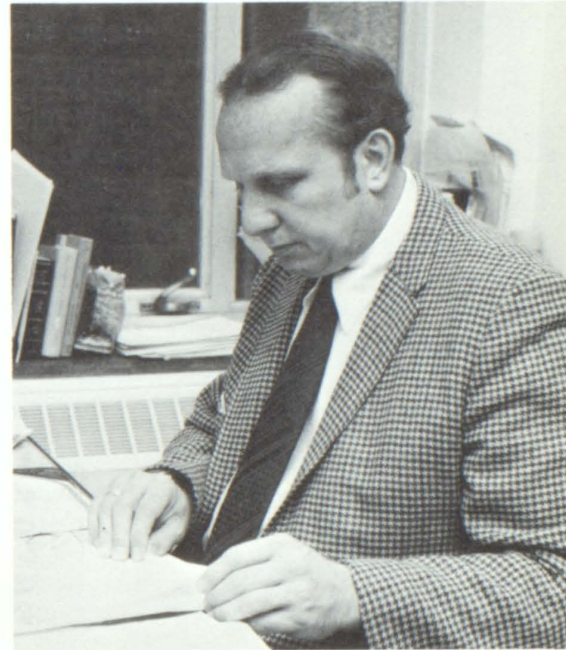

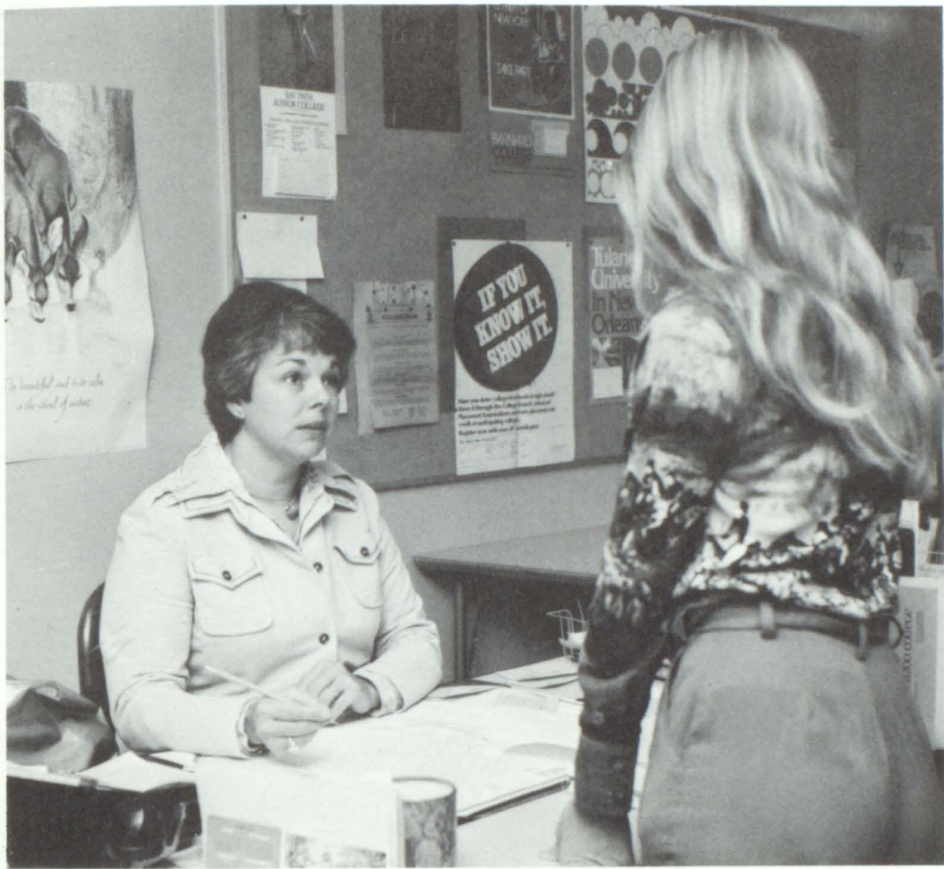

good guiders

Helping people to help themselves. Our faithful counselors Mr. Parks, Mr. Kemp, Mrs. Bogard and Mrs. Ryan did just that each day at Adams, listening patiently to everyone's problems. From arranging class schedules to filling out college applications, the counselors had their hands full this year with 1446 students to guide.

Always armed with a smile Mrs. White and new secretary Mrs. Weinzeirl. Mrs. White handled counselor appointments while Mrs. Weinzeirl typed college applications. These ladies had a big job, and did it well.

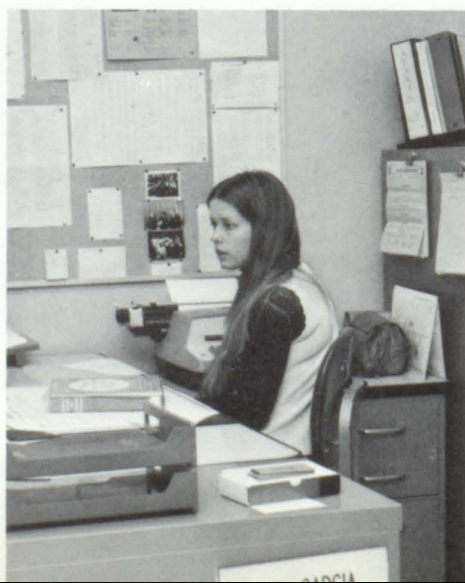

they do good work

"Mr. Hawes telephone call, Mr. Hawes . . ." These and other such statements were broadcasted over the P.A. by the ladies who run the main office. Mrs. Garcia, who moved from the counseling office to the main office, served as Mr. Hawes' secretary, ran the bookstore and took care of clubs. Mrs. Gowanlock was secretary to Mr. Piasecki and Mr. Urbin. She also took care of bus and drivers ed. information. Mrs. Moore ran the switchboard and took care of bulletins.

Meanwhile, down in the attendance office, Mrs. Borck was again picking up attendance slips and taking phone calls from parents, to see who was excused.

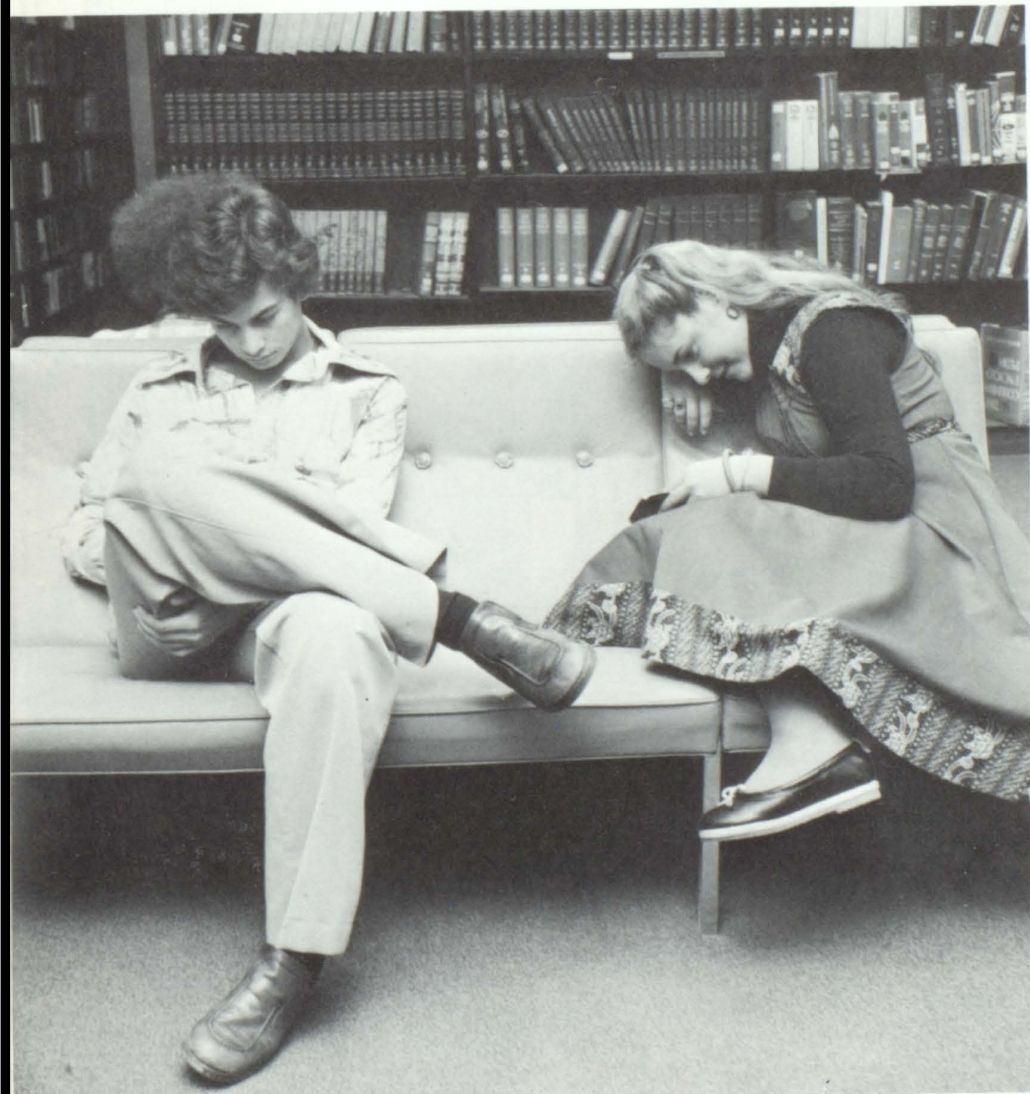

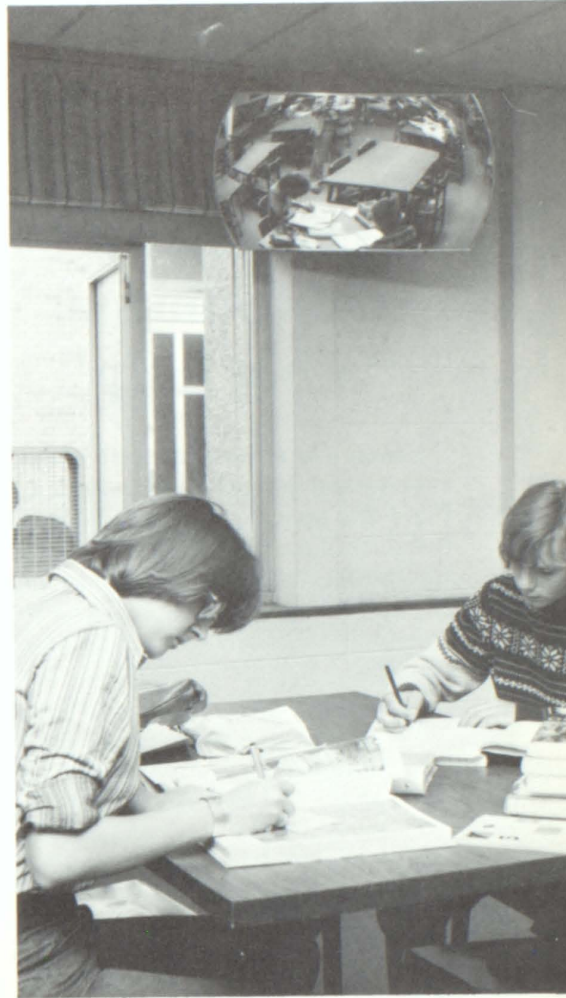

These women worked hard to keep the main and attendance offices running smoothly.

trying to keep the noise down

There were no study halls and students had to have a pass to get into the library 4th hour. Those were two of the new rules pertaining to the library this year. Because of no study halls the library was able to hold three classes instead of two classes per hour. This made it easier for the librarians, Mrs. Green and Mrs. Johnson to keep the books in order and the library quiet.

The library is not all books though. In a corner in the back, Mrs. Sharp had headquarters for the Audio Visual equipment. Everytime a teacher wanted to show a movie they sent their order down to Mrs. Sharp. She responded by sending the teacher the proper equipment. It takes a lot of work to run the library properly and these three did the job.

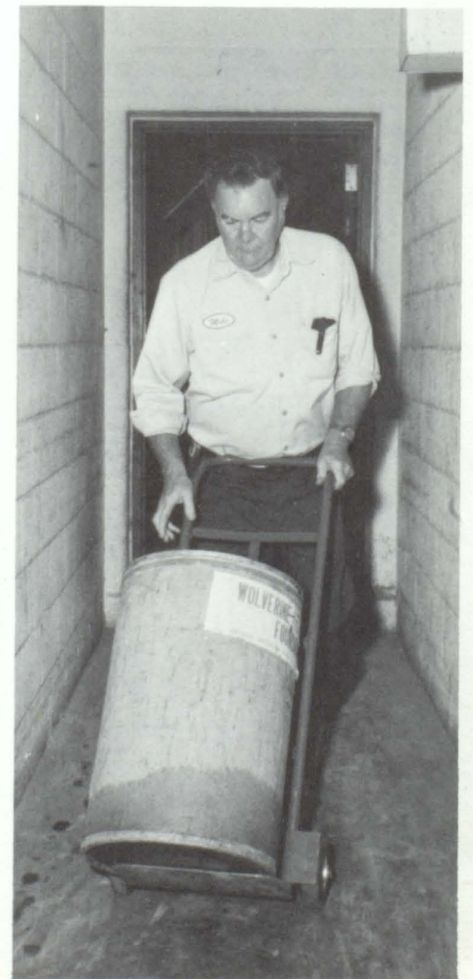

cooks and custodians; “a big help”

It takes a lot of work to keep a school running and the cooks and custodians filled the space perfectly. Without these dedicated souls this school would literally fall apart. The cooks main job was to prepare the lunches. They come in early in the morning, cook until noontime, and clean up afterwards.

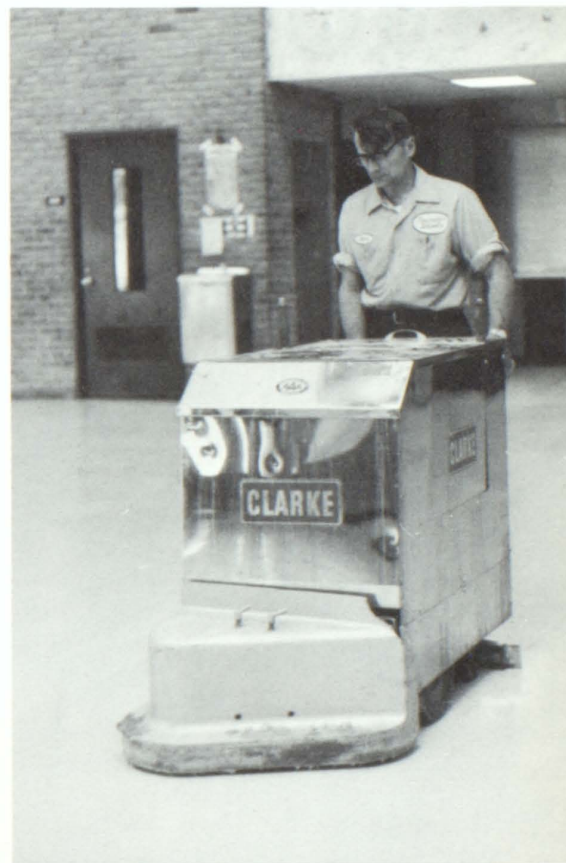

The custodians main job was to keep the school clean and well kept. This includes the disposal and repairs for the entire building.

Without their help our school would be a lost cause, in the hands of 1400 students.

back to basics

If you were around the English office this year you may have seen two new faces. If you were around enough, you may have concluded that the new faces belonged to two English teachers, Mrs. Pollard and Mr. Gibson. This year they became two of the new additions to the English Department here at Adams High School.

Teachers were not the only addition to the English Department this year. History of the English Language, a class that was dropped from the curriculum a few years ago was reinstated. Public Speaking, a class that was always recommended, became a required class this year for all the incoming sophomores.

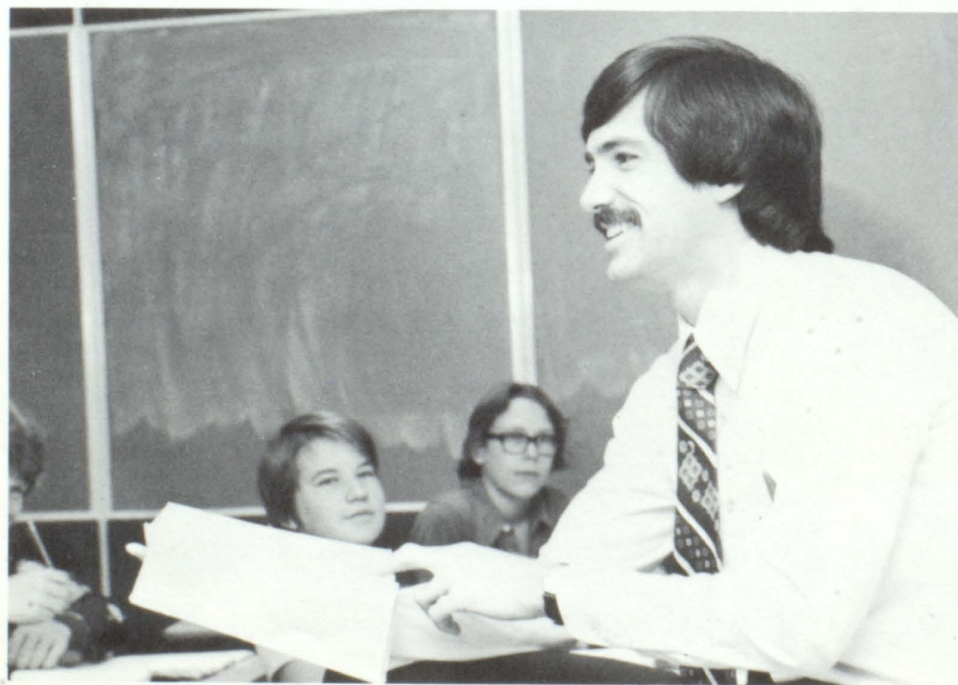

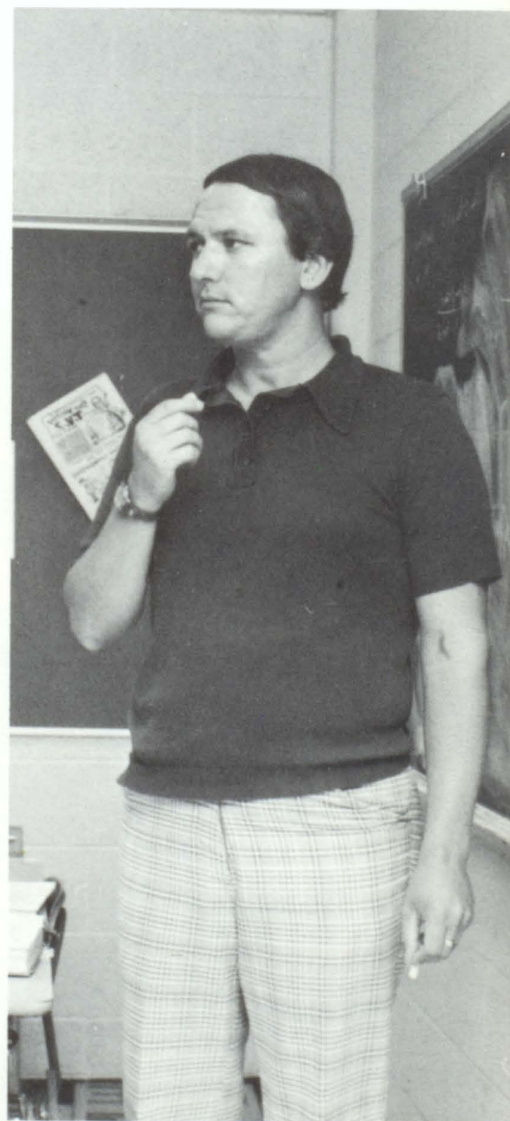

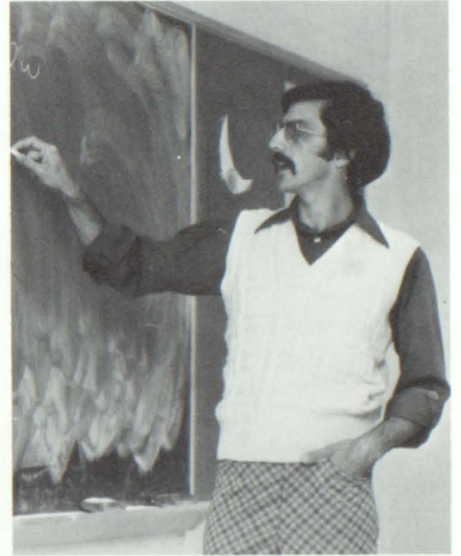

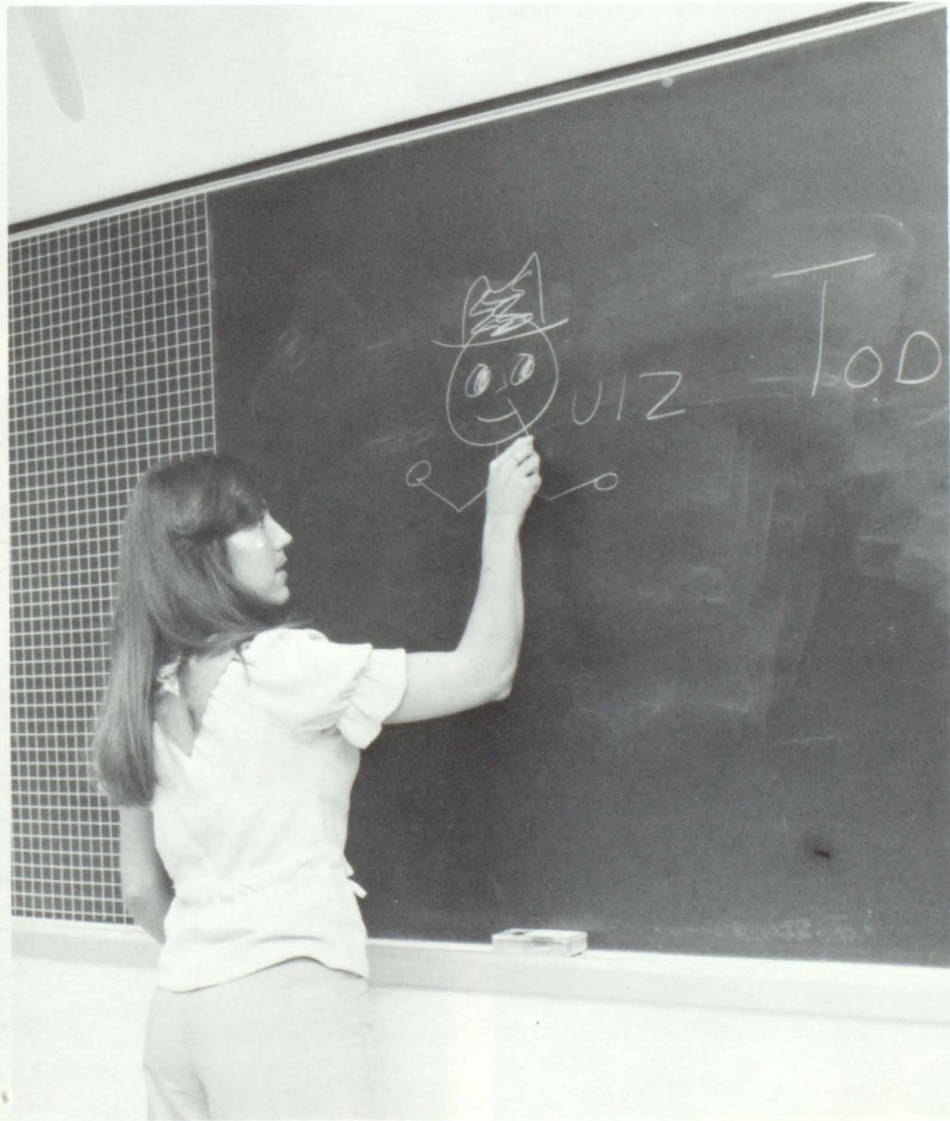

math wizards baffle students

What do you get when you add a multitude of students to a seemingly endless number of classes, and multiply it by a mere handful of teachers? The Highlander Math Department, that's what.

The minimum math requirement for students to take was 2 years, but some went as far as to take 3 or 4 years of math. With the effort of both students and faculty, Adams boasted one of the finest math programs in the area.

The choices here at Adams are as varied as the shapes of snowflakes, but the result was a satisfied student body.

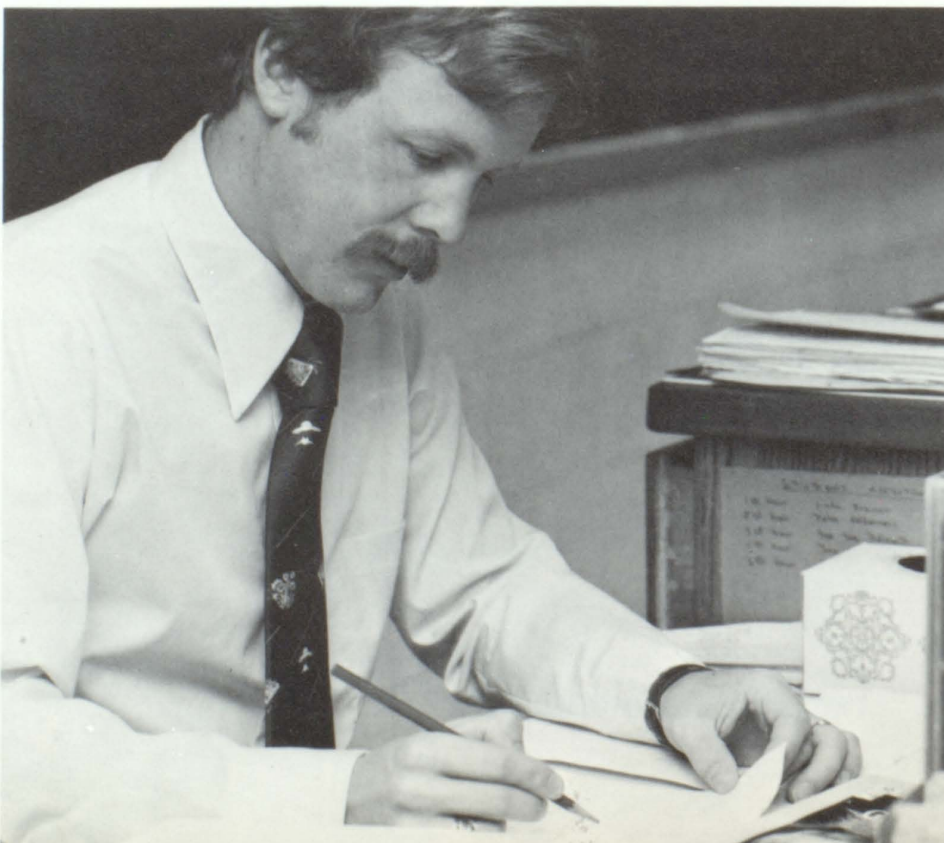

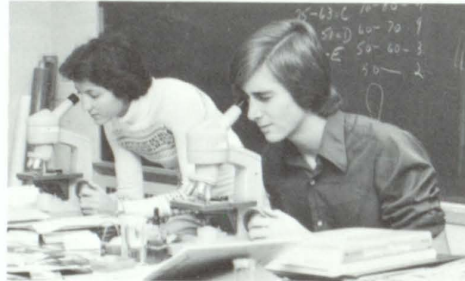

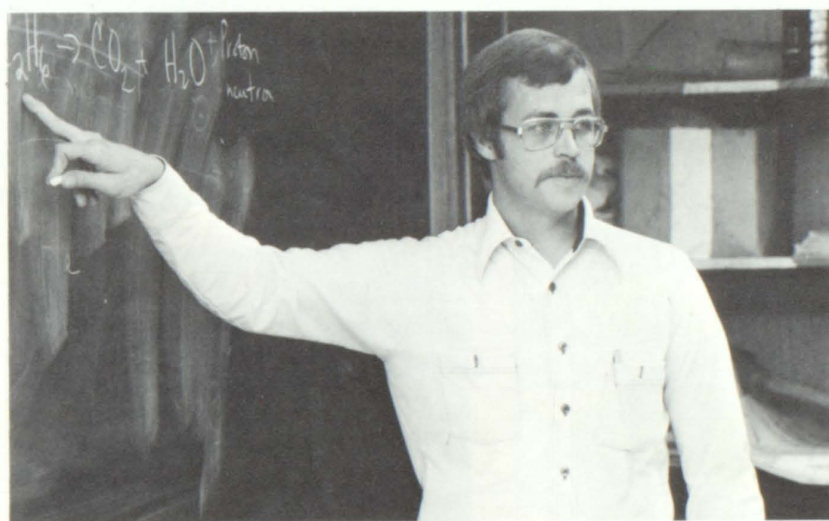

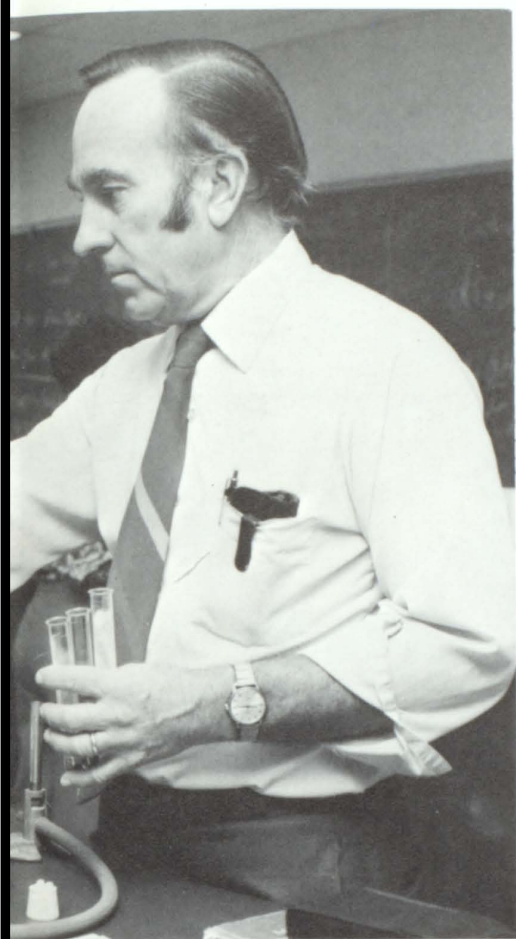

budget cuts won't stop this crew

$2\text{H}_2\text{O} = \text{H}_2 + \text{O}_2$, right? Or "Life continues from pre-existing life." Any student of the Natural Sciences this year could answer these and many more questions.

The Science Department is one of the biggest in the school, second in number of teachers only to the English Department. Despite budget cuts and a general shortage of money, this department still managed to offer the students informative and practical classes.

Mrs. Talley's Physiology classes had maximum enrollment, and Mr. Fliss' Wilderness Survival class was also popular at Adams. Mr. Mickula, a new addition to the Science Department, and Mrs. Long taught Biology classes. The department hopes to offer a wide variety of classes again.

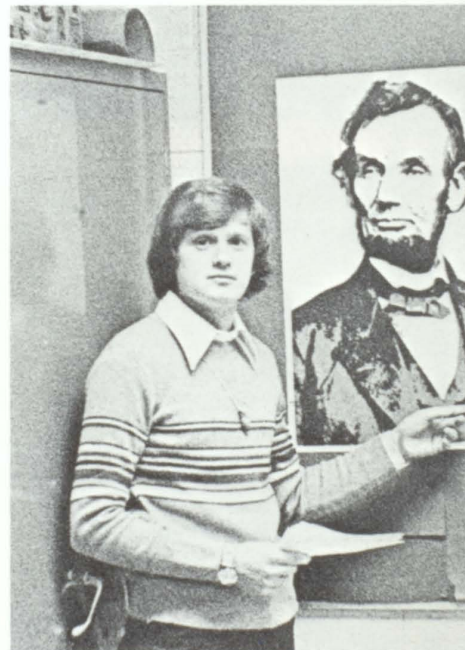

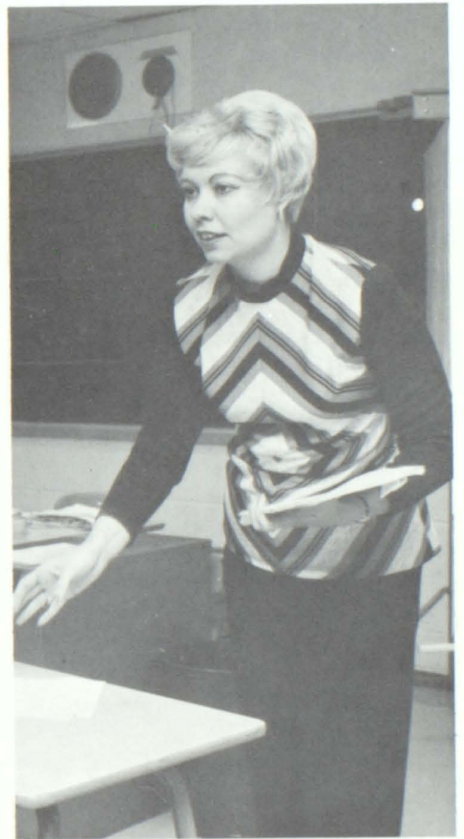

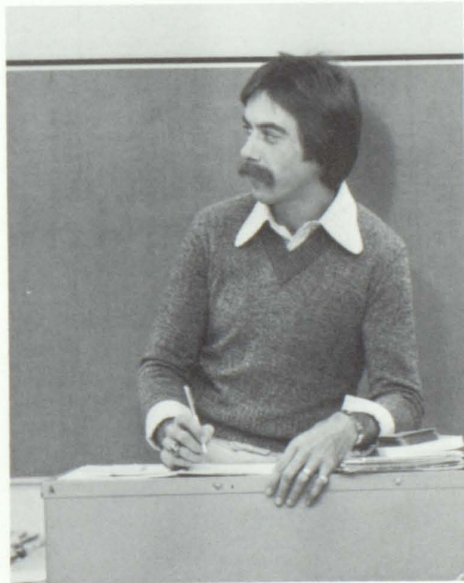

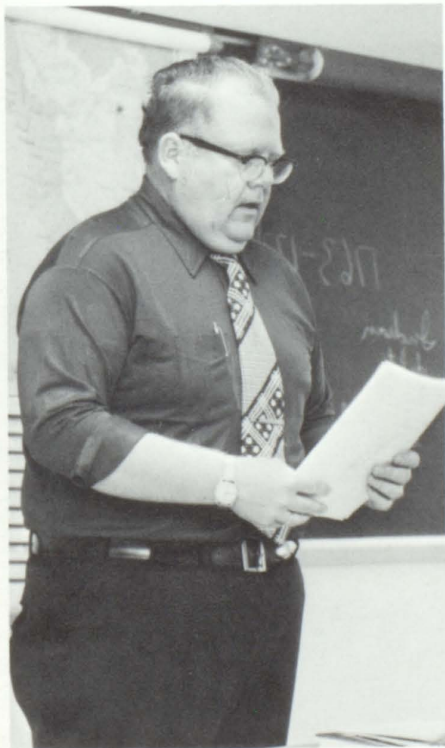

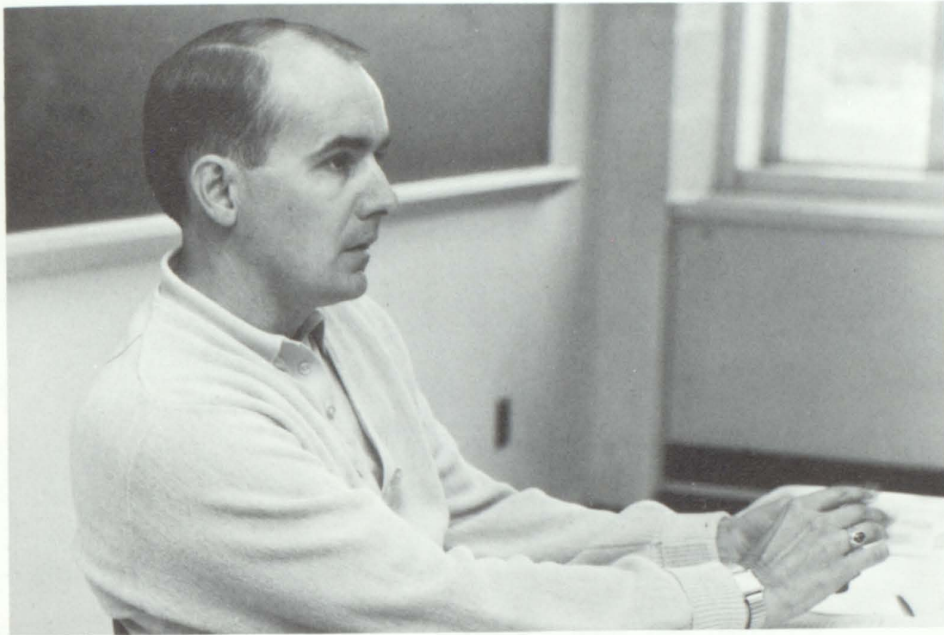

a class for almost everyone

1976 was the year of the presidential election and no one knew it better than the Social Science students. Between watching the debates and collecting campaign material on the candidates, most of the government students were probably better prepared for the election than some adults.

For all those students who were not interested in government and the elections, the Social Science Department had several other classes to offer. These classes ranged from the required American History to such elective classes as History of the World Wars or Affirmation of Life. Whether their interests lay in European History or Contemporary Psychology, the Social Science Department had a class that was of interest to almost every student, no matter if they were Seniors, Juniors or Sophomores.

Getting a good grade in English is hard enough, but have you ever tried to get a good grade in a foreign language?

It is hard, but a foreign language could really be helpful. Not only is it helpful in understanding English but it could be used in the professional business world.

The Foreign Language Department has many goals; to instruct, to teach, and to "connect Language to industrial application."

As it says on Mr. Pazevic's door; Philosophy, French, Russian, and "Friendship spoken here."

He couldn't be more right.

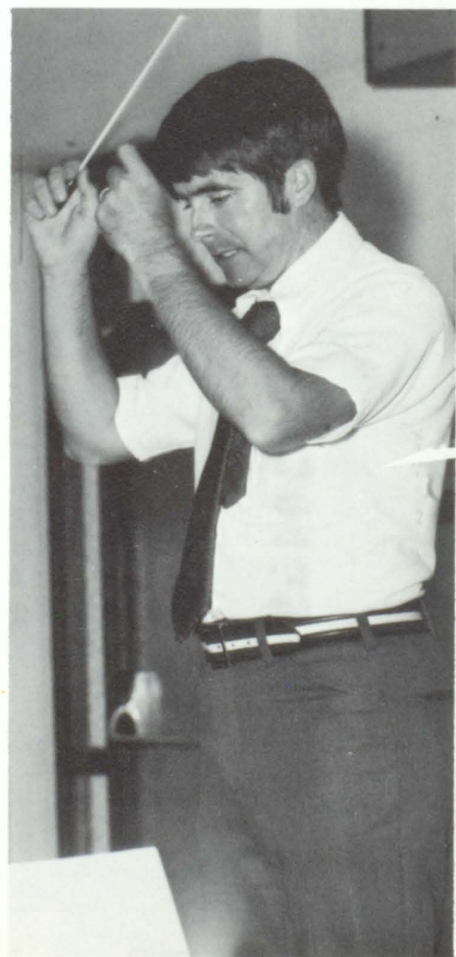

i've got the music in me

Have you ever walked down the hall and thought you heard music? Well if you were anywhere in the vicinity of rooms 301 or 302 chances are the music you heard was the choir or the band. Adams had two choirs and three bands this year. The choirs were Concert Choir and Varsity Choir.

The bands were Concert Band, Symphony Band and Wind Ensemble.

However, if you were by the choir room during 4th hour, and heard neither the choir nor the band, you heard a new class, Beginning Guitar. Students taking class needed no experience, just a guitar.

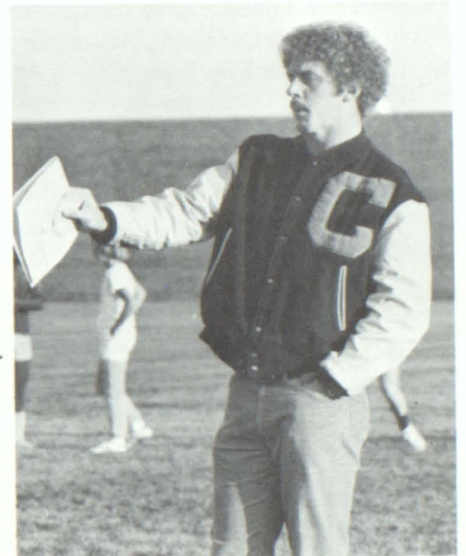

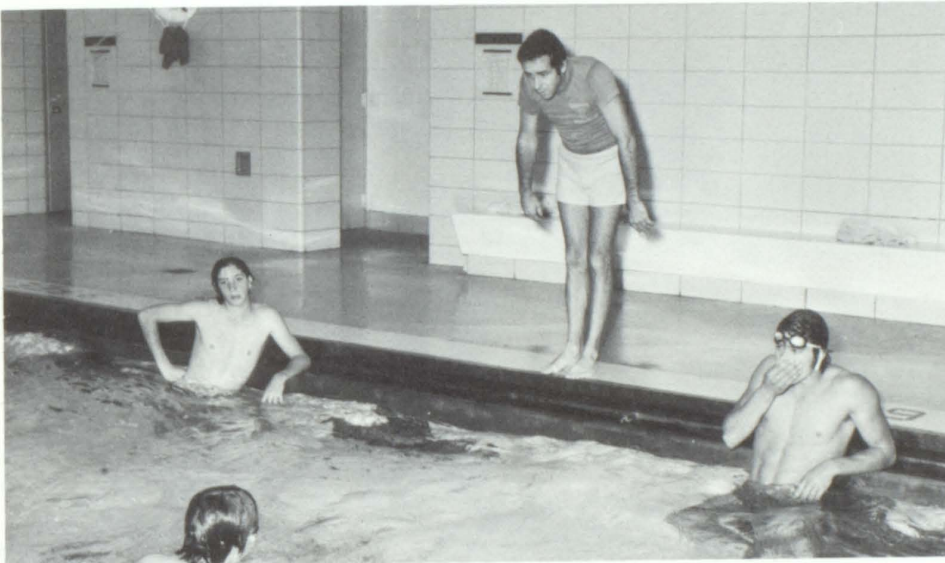

physical education: shape up or ship out!

Who were the figures seen sneaking through the halls in such wild attire as sweatsox, lime green warm-up suits and jock shorts? Why, none other than the Physical Ed. teachers.

Mrs. Sicora, Miss Guillaume and newcomer Mrs. Brosier were in charge of the girls, instructing such classes as Basic P.E. for sophomores, and Thin-Is-In. While no new classes had been offered, new ideas were introduced, such as Aerobic Dancing and Swedish Fitness. Swimming was reinstated into the program now that we have our own pool.

The guys were under the direction of Mr. Cuppy and Mr. Nedzwiecki. A new Independent study class was created, Student Training, or How to be an Athletic Trainer in Ten Easy Steps. In the first semester, two student teachers, Mr. Mark Sutton and Mr. Jim Steffl, helped teach the boys while learning firsthand how to run a class. The department enjoyed full enrollment in most of its classes.

art; a sense of beauty

Without the use of text books to solve problems, this year's Art teachers, Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Nelson and Mr. Spitzer encouraged problem solving through artistic creativity. Art students learned to use their imagination as well as their minds.

This year the Art Department changed its program by eliminating crafts and picking up on the academic art courses. The Art Department, unlike other departments produced fine creative bodies with expressive personalities and imaginative minds.

This year the Ceramic classes participated in Clay Day. They were able to extend their knowledge of ceramics through lectures and workshops.

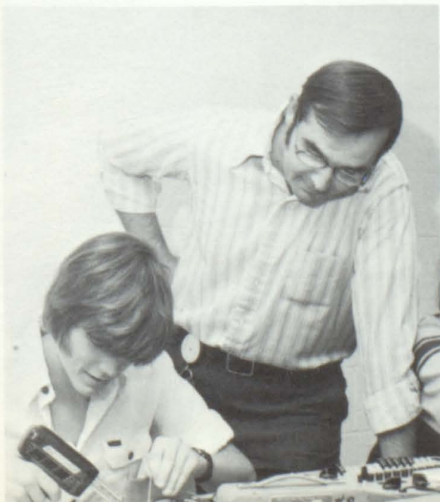

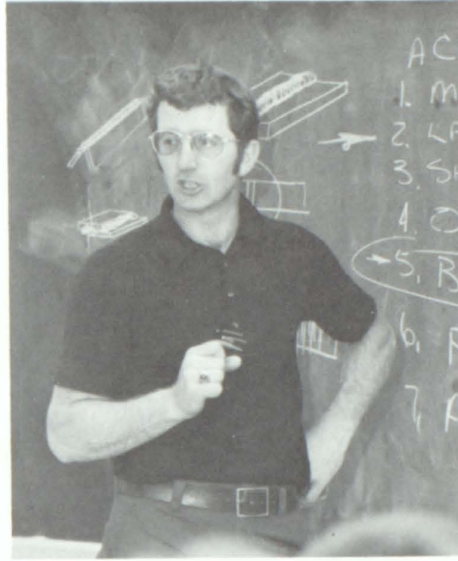

industrial arts steals the show

Even though the Industrial Art Department dropped almost all of its 10 week course classes, enrollment was still high. The 10 week course became too much trouble so the department stuck mainly with semester courses.

This year the Drafting classes stole the show. Enrollment was higher than it's ever been before. If students continue the interest, Drafting may run a full 6 hour schedule next year.

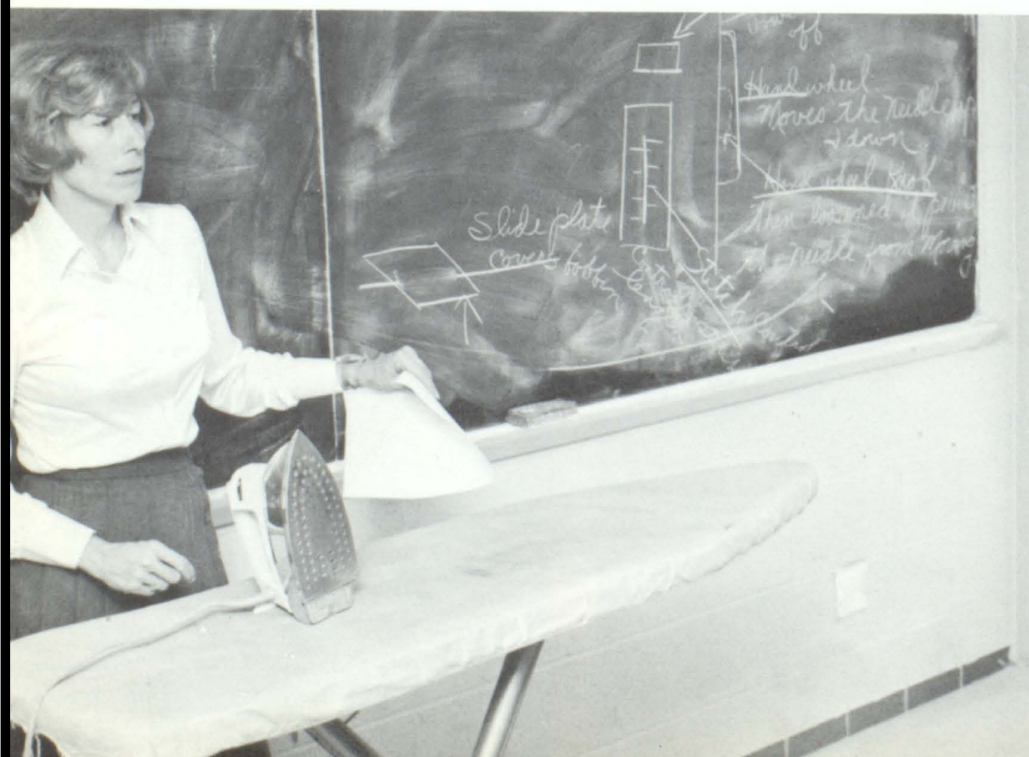

The Rough Carpentry class took on the project of refinishing Paint Creek Elementary School. When finished it will be a museum and a functioning classroom.

something's cooking

Those delicious smells that drifted around the halls of Adams came from none other than the Home-Ec rooms. In addition to cooking classes, this year's Home Economics Department offered such classes as Needlework, Interior Design, Child Development and Exploring Foods. Students were under the direction of Mrs. Fisk, and newcomer to Adams Home-Ec Department, Mrs. Long.

Highland House was back again, serving lunch every week. This year it was possible to order a Chef's Salad instead of the main dish, and guests were allowed a desert choice.

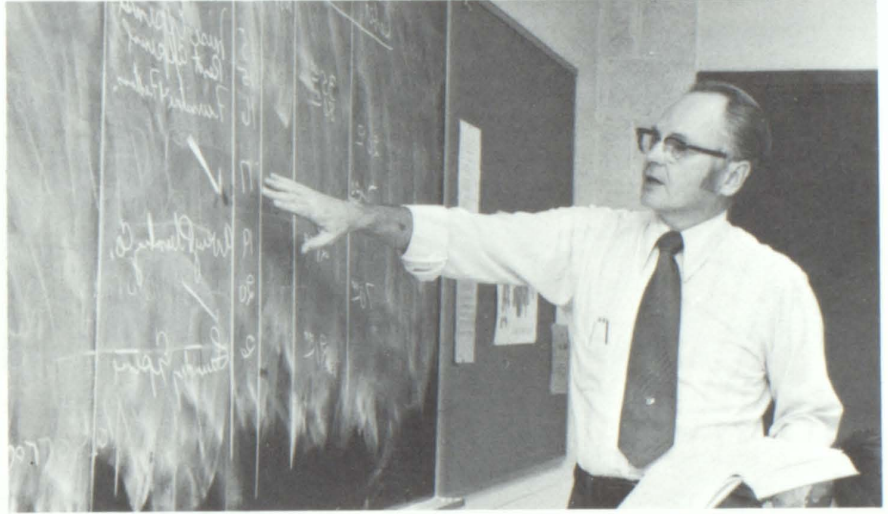

everything's business here

From balancing accounts to mastering the art of shorthand, the Business Department had a busy year.

The Amble Inn had a modest sales record and employed two supervisors, a change from previous years. Prerequisite for this job was one full year's experience in the store.

Enrollment in another vocational type class, Distributive Education co-op was high. This class involved 1 hour a day under Mr. Rosenburg. Outside jobs in sales, stocking or as a cashier contributed credit towards this course. Mrs. Schmitz handled the Office co-op, run in a similar manner, with students doing typing, filing and shorthand in a job for credit.

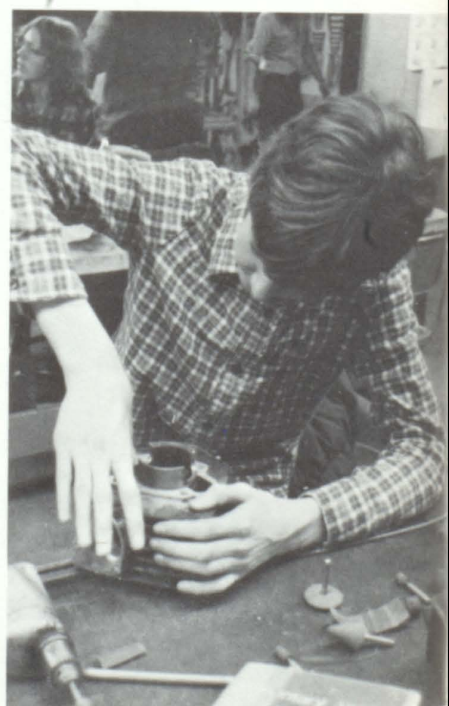

a different way to learn

Neovec stands for Northeast Oakland Vocational Educational Center, and according to Mr. Kempf, did very well.

Neovec had basically three functions. First of all, to develop a skill for a future job. Secondly, to experiment how interested a student is in some particular area, and last, to enter an area outside their academic area.

Their programs lasted two years in length, and ranged from automobile repair to child care to food services. Neovec was a quality program and an asset to Adams High School.

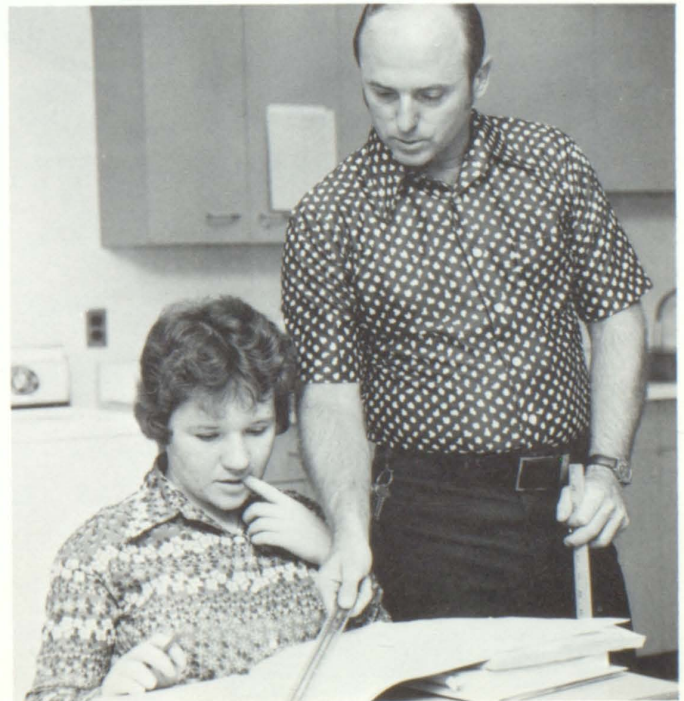

a success story

Work Study and Vocational Adjustment were two very successful programs overlooked by many at Adams High School.

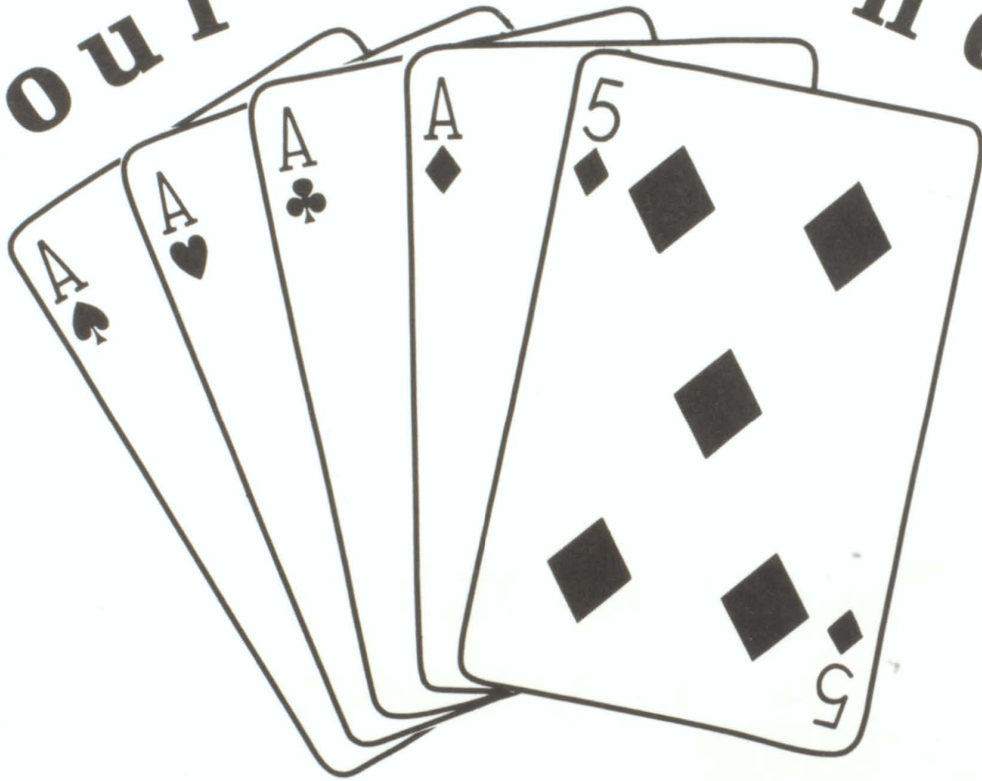

Work Study, under the direction of Mr. Summerhayes, successfully attempted to find jobs while still giving students an education. The students went to school four hours a day, and did part-time work for ten weeks. They switched to full-time work another ten weeks.

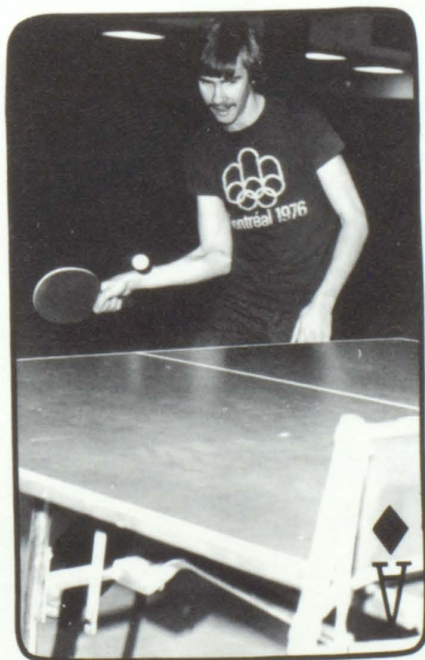

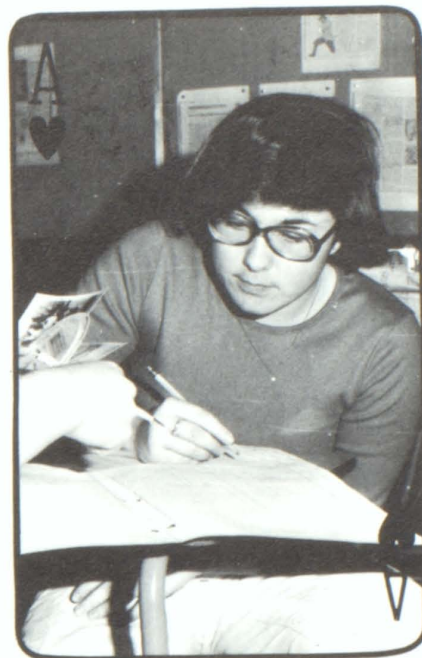

Mr. Swift directed a class that was to fit the needs of people with special needs. The class consisted of 14 students ranging from ages fifteen to nineteen. Before they graduated the students had a full-time job.

Work Study and the Vocational Adjustment classes were self-paced programs designed to fit the needs of individuals.

four of a kind

working for the future

Exactly what did the student council do this year?

That's like asking King Kong how big he is.

Besides sponsoring the huge and exhausting homecoming dance, they sponsored the opening school dances, the after game dances, the winter dance, and the Valentines dance. They were responsible for the Bathroom painting and clean-up, candy and flower sales, the wall murals, the Christmas food drive, the Muscular Distrophy Dance Marathon, and the student exchange days with other school's student councils. The student council was also responsible for the courtyard clean-up beautification program, the smoking clinic, the faculty talent show, the Hypnotist assembly, and mostly, the new smoking area.

There were open meetings in the lecture hall or in room 218 every Friday. The committees met every day, and some times they had special speakers and special workshops.

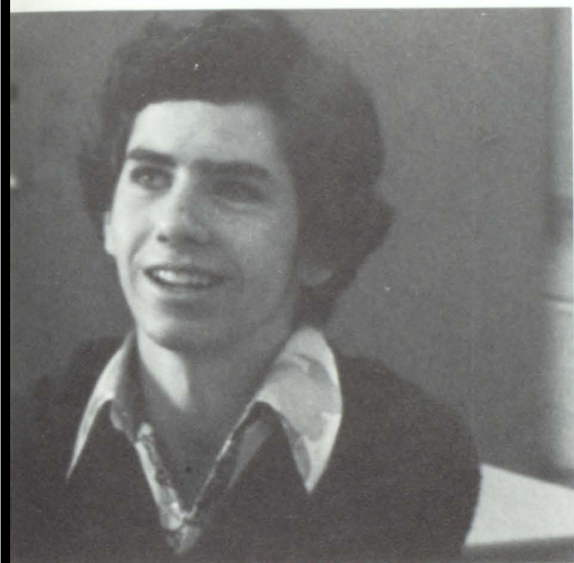

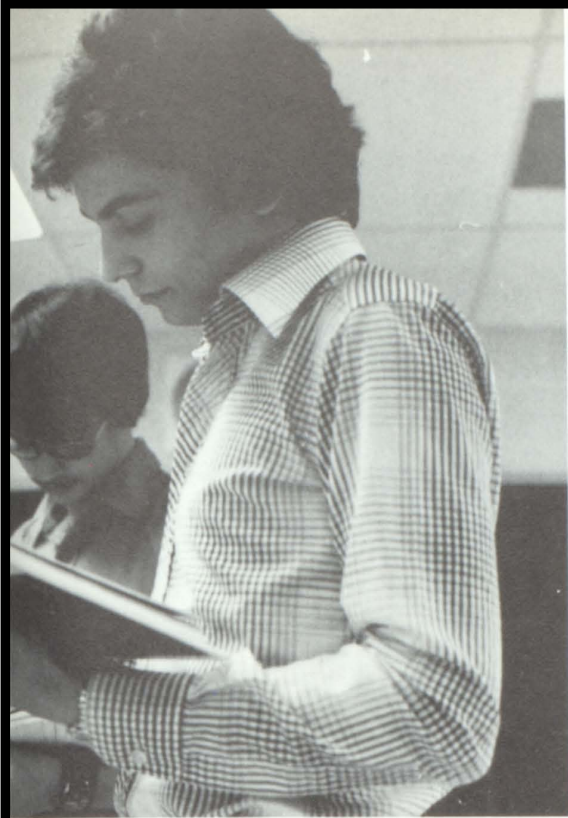

The class officers were: Wes Avram, President; Sue Bishop, Vice President; Lisa Mahanes, Corresponding Secretary; and Sandy Albrecht, Recording Secretary.

The advisor, Mrs. Laidig, said the student council was, "A great group to work with this year!" What more can be said?

not just another book

This year was not just another year and another book for the 1976-77 Highlander staff. Once again it was down to brass tacks, layouts, copy, and headlines to produce the 8th edition of the Highlander Yearbook.

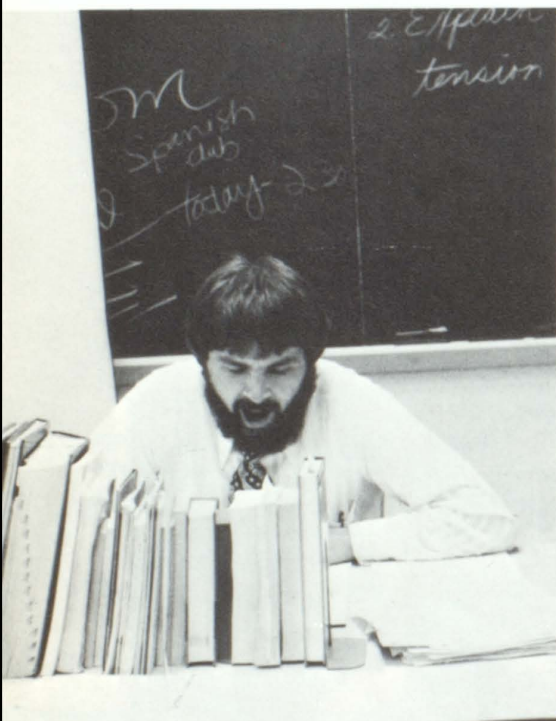

This year's staff was advised by Dave Berube along with Co-editors-in-chief, Kim Headbloom and Cheryl Houghton. Kim Cooper, layout editor, and Kitty Manning, literary editor, had their work cut out for them as they got down to business with their staffs to meet each deadline on time.

Business editor, Sue Monica and her staff worked hard each day to find ads to keep the yearbook out of the red.

One change in this year's book was the addition of spring sports, usually found in the summer supplement.

not just the paper; its the news

This year's school newspaper, "Under the Kilt" came out with one of the finest school newspapers in the area. This weekly paper informed about 1300 students.

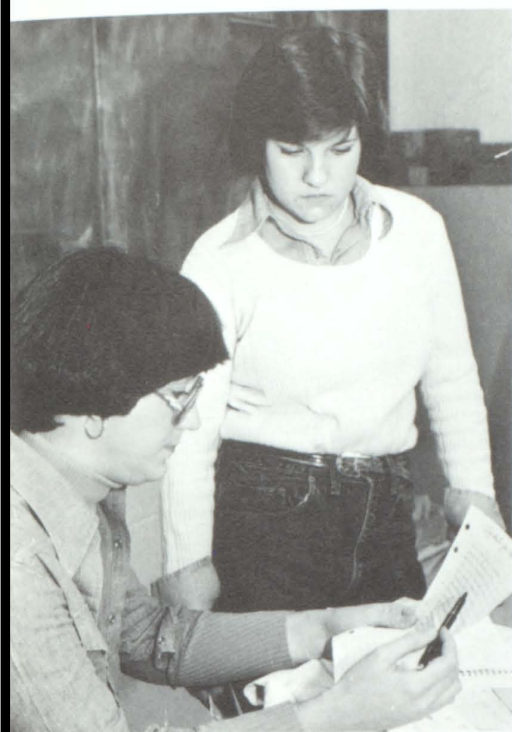

Not only could students find out about the news, but they could read about controversial school issues on the Editorial pages and outstanding sports happenings on the Sports pages. If that wasn't enough, they could be entertained by crossword puzzles, interesting stories and funny little quips and gags on the ever popular Feature pages.

A very popular page was the "Bull-sheet." This page was an accumulation of many things which was published occasionally for the enjoyment of all.

The staff, led by Scott Parks and Laurie Anderson, Co-editors-in-chief, Joe DeBaene, Feature Editor; Betsy Lenhard, News Editor; Dave Wolff, Sports Editor; and Terry Lyzen, Editorial Editor, worked everyday during sixth hour and many times after school to produce one of the finest newspapers in Highlander history.

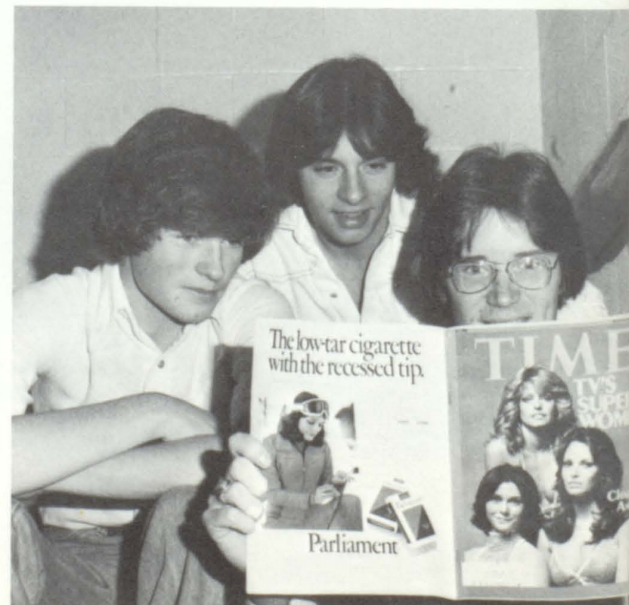

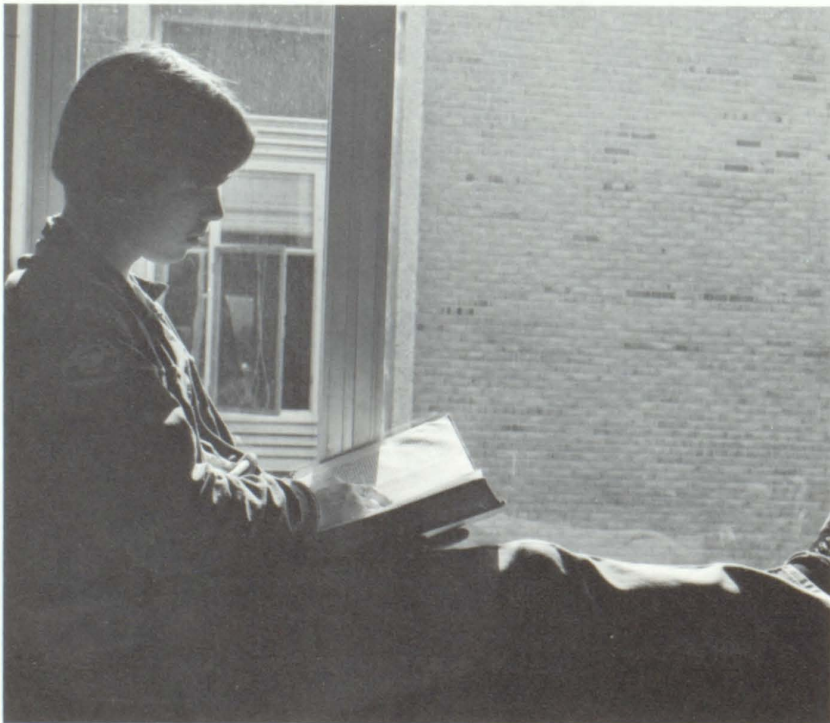

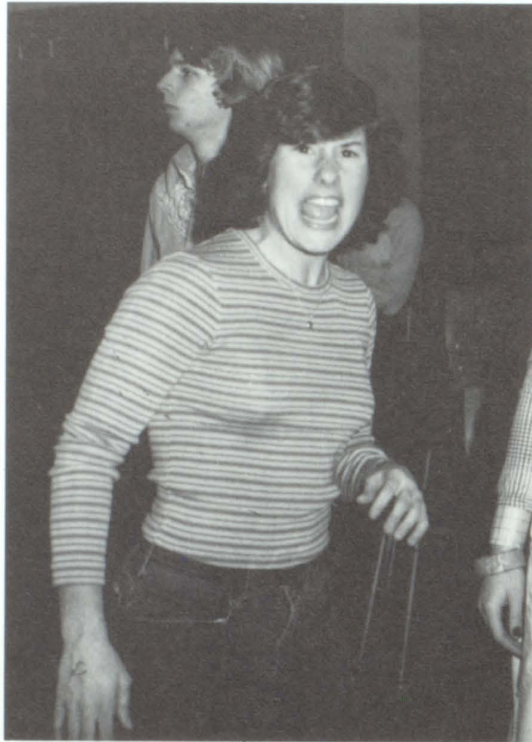

Advisor Mrs. Mastovitch had this to say, "Under the Kilt is unique because the students are responsible for every aspect of its production. Many schools have massive budgets and entire graphic departments which help in the production of their papers. We have neither budget nor equipment and even though our paper is seldom 'professional' looking, the students have total involvement and satisfaction of achievement."

highlander lassies - ladies in "wading"

"If ya don't work ya don't eat". That was the motto of this year's Highlander Lassies.

Headed by the new boys swim team coach, Jim Steffl, the Lassies changed their image this year. At the first home swim meet the Lassies showed up to time in their new uniforms, gold shorts with brown T-shirts.

Besides timing at all the meets the Lassies had other duties. They helped cook breakfast each morning for the swimmers. The Lassies also sponsored the Donkey Basketball game in March and had many bake sales to raise money.

A lot of time and effort was given by these girls to support the 1976-77 boys swim team.

cross country skis on

Over the hills and through the woods the Cross Country Club did go, they traveled across the many miles through the cold, sleet, and snow. And much could not stop the Cross Country Club, a new addition to Adams this year.

The club, sponsored by Mr. Pazevic, began in the winter for those who wanted to cross country ski for their own enjoyment.

The Cross Country Club began skiing on Saturday mornings at Oakland University. The team officers were, Bob Brown, president; Jim O'Dowd, vice president; Shelly Jahns, secretary; and Vegard Woldseth, treasurer.

chess club checks opponents

"The Chess Club has not yet developed any Bobby Fishers," said Chess Club coach John Treat, "but we have more regulars than in the past—a well balanced team."

The Chess Club met on Mondays and Tuesdays in room 222. This year's officers were Jon Pazevic and Mark Googasian.

As in the past years, Bagel sales were their biggest money making activity. Mr. Treat hopes that next year there will be more people joining up. As he said, "I hope others who appreciate this noble game will join us next year."

golden girls spread sunshine

This year Adams High School had something new. Rochester High School has its Falconette's and now Adams has its "Golden Girls."

These girls could be seen marching in parades, performing at basketball games, selling Christmas candles, or in the front lobby selling their baked goods at the bake sales.

The organizer and sponsor of the Golden Girls was Mrs. Joan Allison. The captain was Cindy Buehholz, and the first and second lieutenants were Teri Walsh and Therisa Schelo. They were a smashing success.

"Mightier Than The Sword" was a new type of publication at Adams this year. It wasn't another newspaper but a magazine, designed to show the creative talents of students at Adams.

The magazine, which was put out by the Literary Club, also new to Adams this year, was full of stories, poems, and drawings, students at Adams had done.

Fourteen dedicated students, all interested in writing, helped to write and publish the magazine. They were Carrie Vernia, Rob Jones, Kelly King, Libby Geist, Kim Werkman, Joe Henry, Loretta Kunesh, Karla Rosenbusch, Ben Vernia, Patti Arscott, Sue DeMent, Pat Twomey, Liz Stern, and Sonia Brusiloff. Mrs. Boyle was the sponsor for the magazine which took two months to put together.

This year's table tennis team had a new angle, encouraging girls participation. In this year's MSAA tournament more girls events were added. The tournament, held the first week in February at Adams, had eight events. Three girls singles, three boys singles, and two mixed doubles. The team, which met every Wednesday and Thursday, was led by their coach Mr. Treat and their officers Tim Davis, Mark Krause, and Joe Marth.

Table Tennis, as well as being a good game, is good exercise and Mr. Treat hopes next year even more kids, both boys and girls, will decide to participate.

"Don't break character" and "Be professional" are two terms familiar to anyone who was in Thespians this year. Thespians, which entered its second year at Adams, was one of the most active clubs this year. With over 80 members, the society gives anyone interested in theater a chance to become a member of The International Thespian Society. All they needed was ten points gained from working in different aspects of the theater.

Led by this year's officers, President, Dave Marshall, Vice President, Dennis Persinger, Clerk of Points, Lea Allen, Treasurer, Greg Gallopoulos, and Historian, Teckla Rosenbusch, the society presented two plays and several skits this year.

The two plays were The Odd Couple and The Crucible. The two directors were the Thespian sponsor Ms. Gibson and her associate Mr. Lentz.

amble inn— service with a smile

Who stocked all the favorite records and tapes and was always there when someone had a craving for their special gum? Why the Amble Inn of course.

Sponsored by Mr. Rosenberg, students had an opportunity to run a store and do business with fellow classmates. The Amble Inn, located on the corner room in the basement, was open for business five days a week during all lunch hours. Many found the Amble Inn as a great asset to Adams High School.

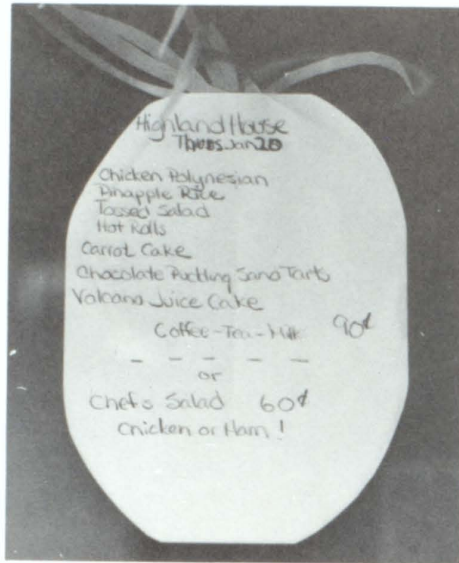

“out to lunch”

For only 90 cents, teachers and students could get a delicious meal at Adams this year. If people got the cafeteria “blahs” and wanted to escape from that lunchroom of mass hysteria, Highland House was the place for them.

Open three days a week, Highland House served full meals on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and soup, dessert and beverages on Wednesdays. Usually they had a full house. The class served 60 to 90 customers a day.

In addition, Highland House catered to Senior Citizens.

The class consisted of only those experienced in cooking.

a little work and a lot of play

What is more fun than dozens of screaming kids 24 hours a day at Camp Tamarack in Oxford, Michigan? Nothing in the world as far as the Adams students, chosen to camp council this winter, were concerned.

Yes, all the sixth grade students of Meadow Brook, University Hills, Baldwin, North Hill, and Long Meadow elementary schools had the exciting experience of sticking with their counselors for five days and nights. Everyone had a good time, kids, counselors, teachers, and staff.

Winter camp was fun for everyone and an experience for all.

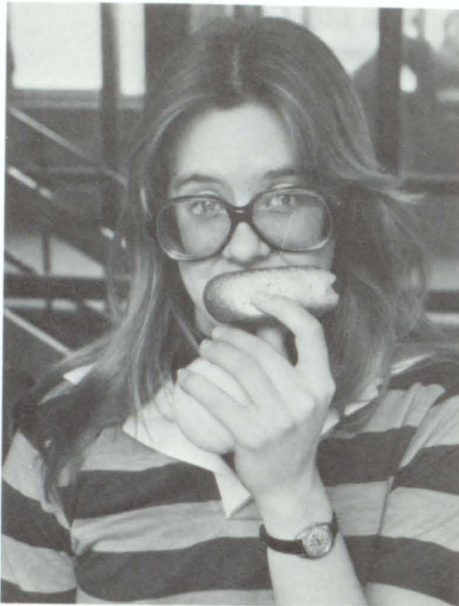

active intellectuals

What club is composed of the most intelligent and most active students at Adams? The National Honor Society of course! This year the NHS was a more active club than in previous years. Their main objective was to raise money to purchase cords, pins, and cards for the members.

The hot bagels sold almost every Friday were one of NHS's fund raising projects. Others were Cracker-jack sales and dances.

This year was Mr. Gibson's first as Honor Society sponsor. He was assisted by President Jerry Benson, Vice-President Cheryl Houghton, Secretary Gail Sponseller, and Treasurer Monica Schroder. Some people felt that the NHS was only for status purposes, so this year the society adopted a new attendance policy. In an attempt to gain more members participation, attendance was taken at each meeting and the people who didn't attend at least half the meetings were no longer members.

Even without these changes the NHS would be the most "honored" club at Adams.

brains and character

Many people often wonder where the brains of the senior class are. At Adams the eight National Merit Semifinalists compile a group of some of the smartest students. These people scored with the top 2 percent of all the people who took the P.S.A.T. and S.A.T. tests in the entire United States.

Others ask where the character and fine citizens of Adams are. The Rotary Club of businessmen and community leaders choose two senior boys each month to represent this group. They were invited with club members to luncheons because of their good character and citizenship. These people were truly the brains and character of the senior class.

omp-pa-pa omp-pa-pa, that's how it goes

The Highlander marching band beebopped their way through many a highlander halftime this year. But this year the band did much more.

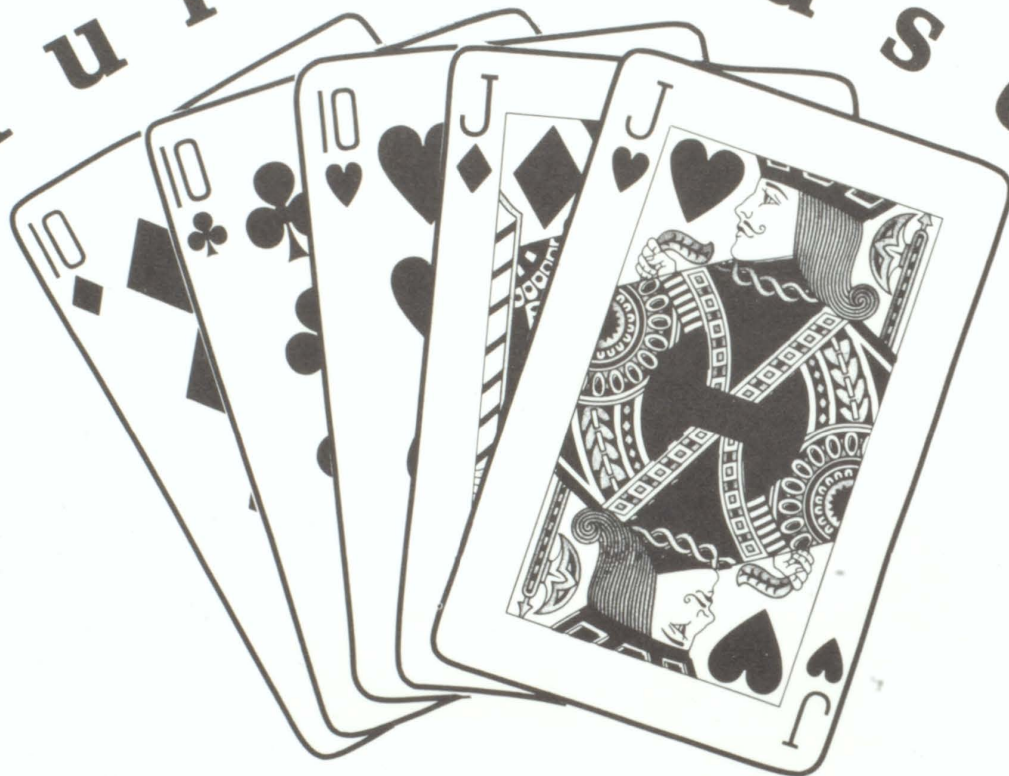

Besides halftime activities, the "Pride of Rochester" participated in M.S.U. band day, was featured band at Cedar Point on Sept. 3, performed at the Arts and Apples festival on Sept. 26, and participated in the Rochester Bicentennial Parade.

The band could be seen and heard at 7:00 A.M. every morning on the football field, led by band director Mr. Simmons, and drum major Karen Elmer. Every year the Highlander marching band has gotten better, and this year they were the finest band ever.

“registration blues”

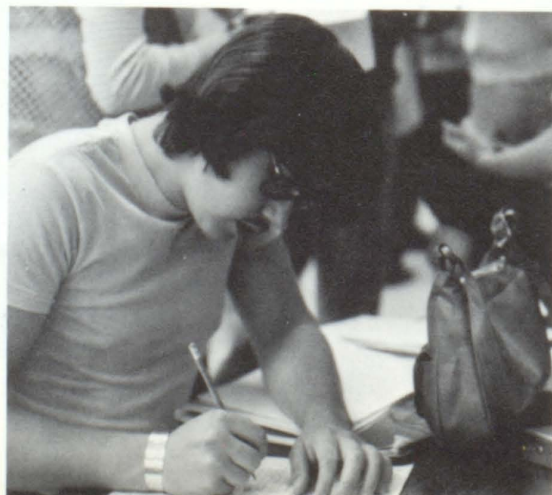

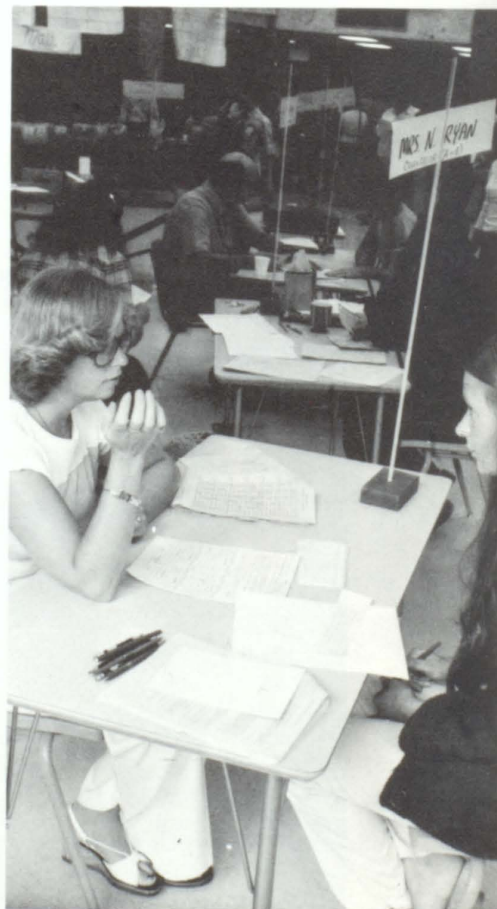

As traumatic as it was for some, registration went fairly smoothly this year.

Although many suffered through long lines just to get in (only to find that our favorite classes were cancelled over the summer or already filled), teachers and administrators were always ready to lend a helping hand.

Counselors were especially eager to assist, as they rechecked the students' schedules before leaving and made sure that each were scheduling enough credits.

One major change this year was the dropping of study halls. Instead, we could choose late arrival or early dismissal. The requirement that seniors take at least four classes was also new this year.

Whether you thought it was mass confusion or organized and orderly, you must admit that Adams' scheduling process is truly a unique sight.

“boogie down”

From “Disco Duck” to “Night Moves,” the Highlanders were dancing up a storm this year. There was a wide variety of bands—however, attendance was about average. But some didn’t mind, the less people, the more room to “boogie down.”

Last year’s rules were still in effect. Re-entering the dance was not allowed, and there was no admittance after 9:00 p.m. Smoking and drinking inside the dance was also a no-no.

Generally, the people attending the dances were an enthusiastic, lively crowd. Although they were most always a money-making venture, the dances usually promised just a darned good time.

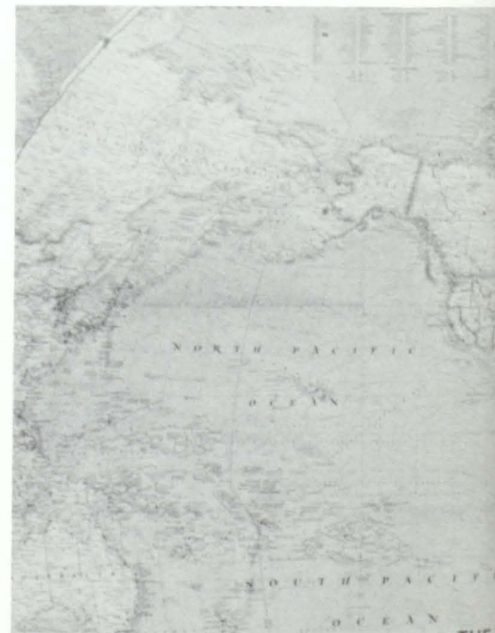

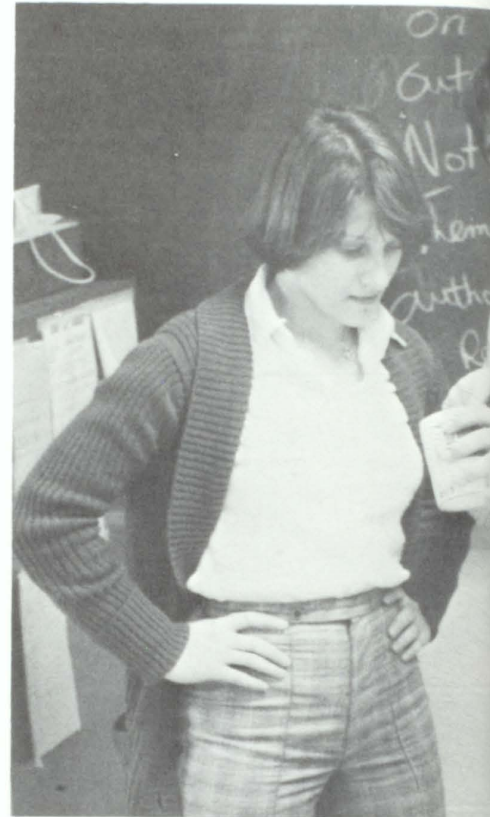

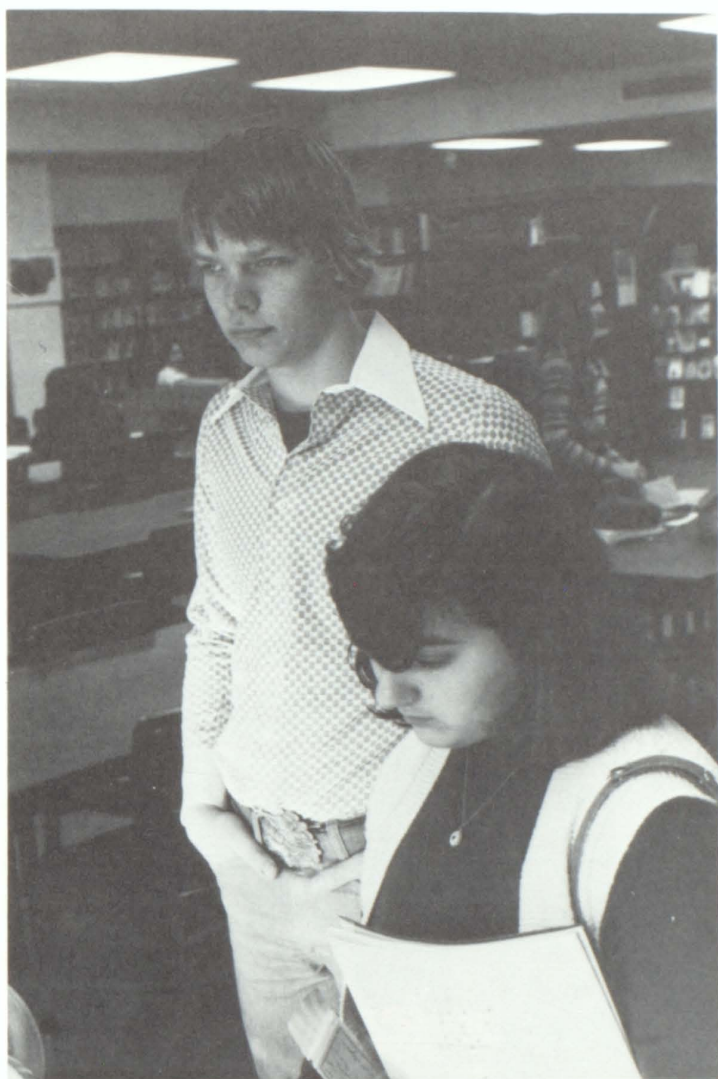

exchanging glances

This year's foreign exchange students were greeted by a rare treat when they came to Michigan, more snow and cold weather than we've had in years. If the cold weather wasn't enough, we were asked to "dial down" our furnaces. However, the cold weather didn't seem to stop the foreign exchange students from getting involved in such after school activities as clubs, theater and gymnastics.

There were six foreign exchange students, all seniors. Matthias Bartke, Wolfram Bratz, and Annette Knoll were from Germany. Jean-Daniel Rudaz was from Switzerland, Mauricio Santos came from Ecuador and Vegard Woldseth's home was in Norway.

Assemblies, those things that everybody buys tickets to so they can get out of class, were again, popular this year at Adams. They started out with the homecoming assembly that a good majority of people attended. The next assembly was the Christmas assembly, complete with Christmas carols, Christmas candies, and Santa Claus. A series of folk singers, who came with their guitars and little bit of philosophy. Then it was time for one of the all time favorites, the hypnotist! As it was the hypnotist, Dr. Irwin Ross, for his last year, filled the gym with hundreds of students so they could watch their friends do funny and unusual things. With the spring came the talent show, where Adams students showed some of the talent they had to their friends.

Assemblies have long been a form of relaxation and distraction from the everyday routine. Adams has been lucky to have so many good and entertaining assemblies at Adams. Hopefully in the future we can have even more worthwhile assemblies.

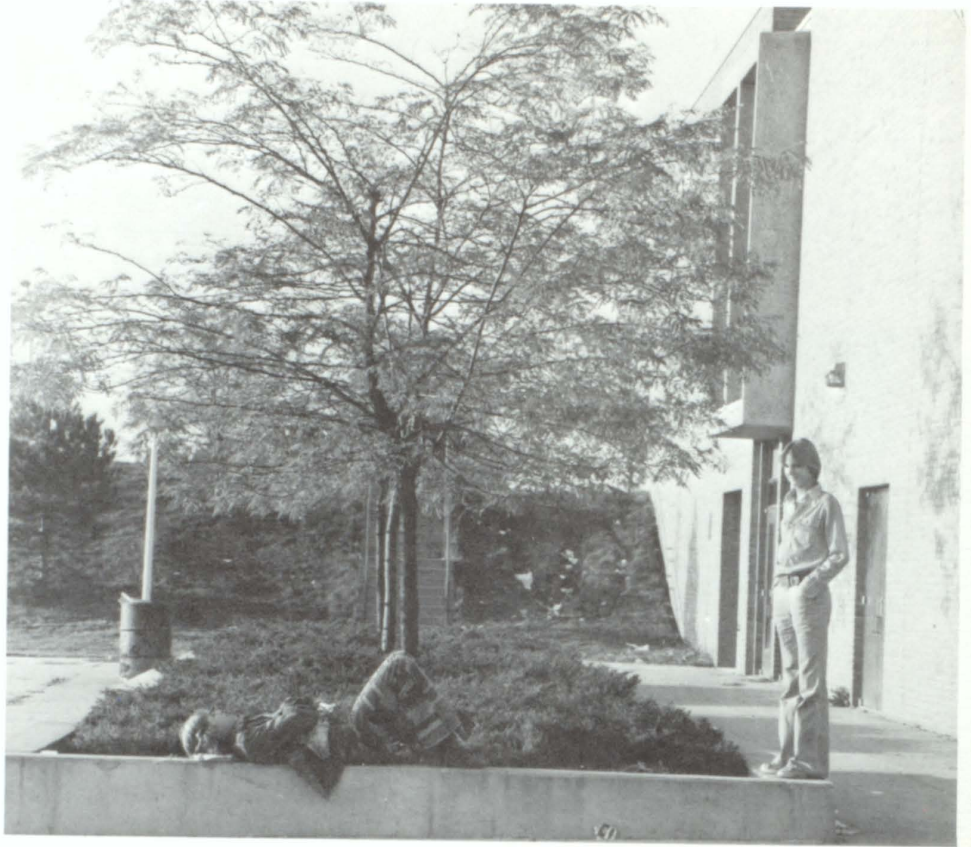

passin away the time of day

To fight the basic boredom of day to day school life, Adams students found many activities to pass the time.

Windowsill sitting and waterhole relaxing were a carried on tradition at Adams. However, many students painted the time away, working on the wall murals, to beautify the school. Others kept up with their studies in their free time, while some kept up with their free time during their studies. As the spring fever hit, many went outside to catch some fresh air and take a breather from their hectic days.

homecoming 76 a time to remember . . .

This year's homecoming week was one full of spirit and action. The theme was movies and beginning Monday all the way to Saturday students worked to make this year's homecoming something to remember.

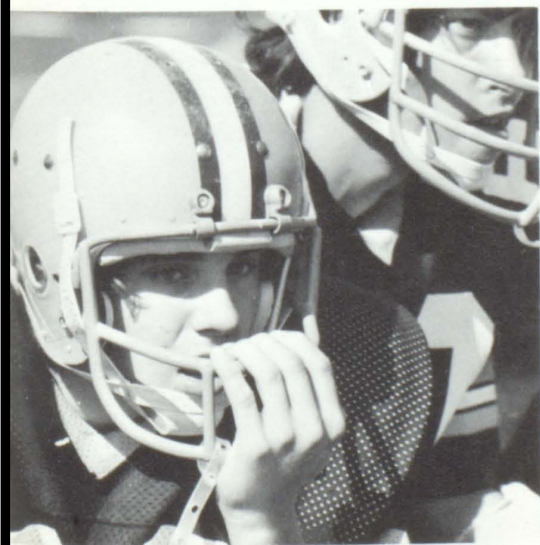

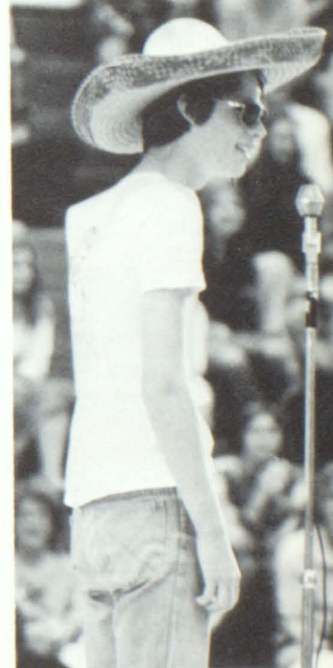

Monday began the homecoming week festivities with college T-shirt day. As students rolled into the parking lot on Monday morning, they found seniors had been busy the night before. Signs hanging from the roof declared seniors to be No. 1. Tuesday was Western day. A highlight of the day was the John and Jane Wayne walk and talk alike contest won by Ted Beck and Marianne Jones. During all lunch hours there were rootbeer chugging, marshmallow stuffing and banana eating contest. Chris Whitfield chugged the most beers; Jeff Tombolian ate the most bananas; and Tom Burgess stuffed 19 marshmallows. Wednesday was hat day. Thursday was the 8th annual homecoming assembly. An enormous amount of spirit was displayed by sophomores, juniors, and seniors, but the seniors stole the show winning the spirit yell hand down. Juniors won the spirit yell presentation. Friday was a half day of school so students worked on floats and watched the B.G. Bowl game.

Finally the long awaited day came, Saturday's homecoming game and dance. For the first time in 4 years, it was sunny—no rain. Adams was up against Southfield Lathrup.

Halftime festivities began with the parade of floats. The sophomore float, "Blaze Their Saddles" won; the junior float "Jaws" came in 2nd; and the senior float, "Mash the Chargers" was 3rd.

... and never to forget

This year's class floats were the best representation in years. Other clubs that entered the halftime excitement were the Honor Society, French Club, and German Club.

Next came the homecoming court and their escorts. The sophomore court was Angie DeBaene and Anjel Arnold. They were escorted by Greg Benson. Junior court was Lynn Huzzard and Kim Willis. They were escorted by Dave Wattles. This year's senior court was Penny Smith escorted by Robin Tooley, Brookie Rigney escorted by Jerry Benson, and Sandy Albrecht escorted by Scott Parks. Brookie Rigney was announced the homecoming queen of 1976.

The only disappointment of the day was that Adams was defeated by Southfield Lathrup, 7-14.

Following the game was the homecoming dance. The theme of this year's homecoming dance was "The Way We Were". The dance featured the band Felix, and they played music from 8:00 to 11:00. After a week of excitement and fun, students could relax and enjoy the evening.

For many, this year's homecoming was just another year. For those who worked hard to bring back the spirit to Adams High School, this year's homecoming was something to remember. Each class, the sophomores, juniors, and the seniors, made this year's homecoming a memorable one indeed.

a battle for victory

The seniors made it happen again as the Homecoming spirit led them to a 20-0 victory over the juniors in the 1976 B.G. Bowl game. Tradition could not be failed as seniors, Brookie Rigney, Patty Doyle, and Kim Headbloom scored against the determined junior defense in the flag football game, Friday afternoon of Homecoming week.

Both junior and senior teams began practice 4 weeks before the big game. The coaches ran each team through drill after drill and play after play to prepare the girls for a battle that both teams were determined to win. For the juniors it was a defeat yet an experience that will lead them to a victory as next years seniors.

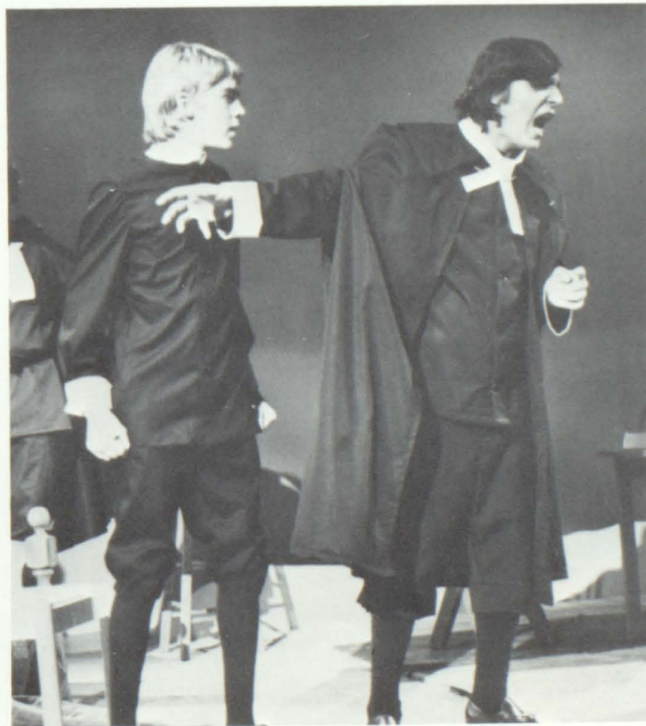

the crucible, or the cubicle?

Witch hunts and trials were the plot of this year's school play "The Crucible". Set back in the late sixteenth hundreds, the story told of the witch hunts in a small town outside of Salem, Massachusetts.

The play ran for three nights, February 3rd, 4th, and 5th. However, the cast and crew, which consisted of over fifty people, began working on it in early December.

It took lots of hard work from everyone to make the play a success, but the main people who kept the play going were Ms. Gibson, director, Mr. Lentz technical director, Dave Brooks student director, Chris Kresge, stage manager.

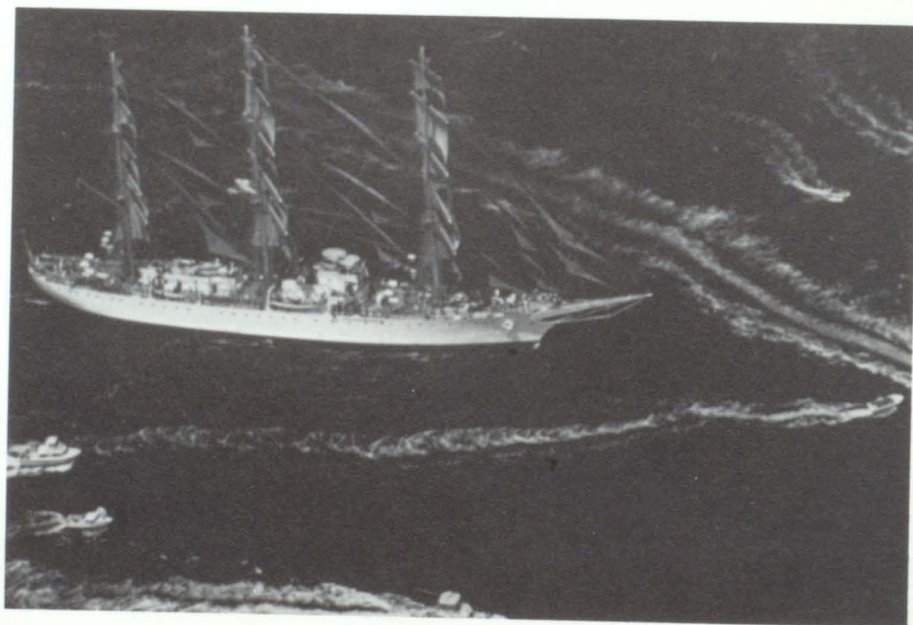

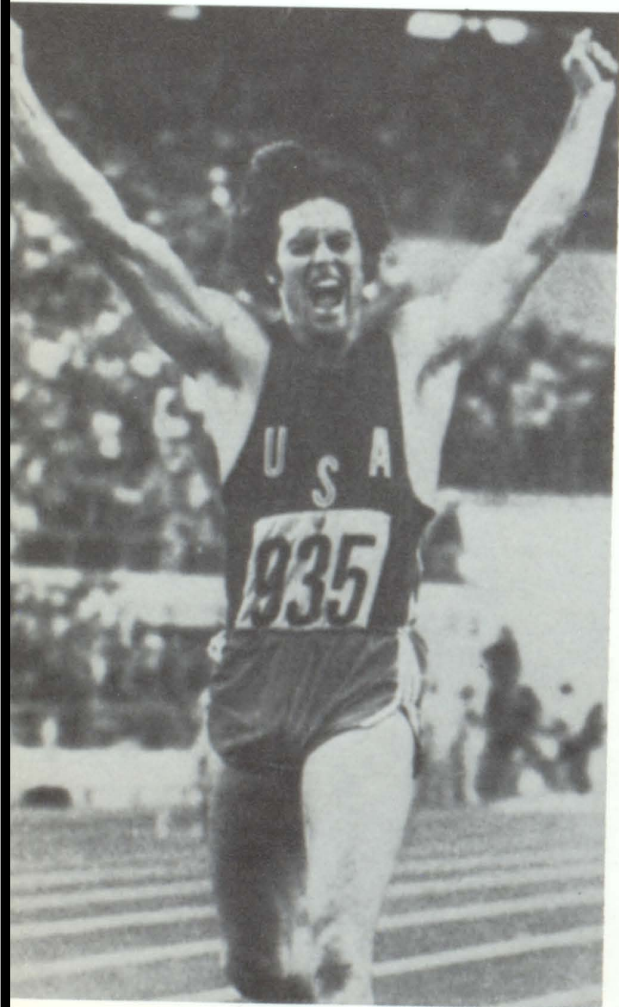

after the bi-centennial year . . .

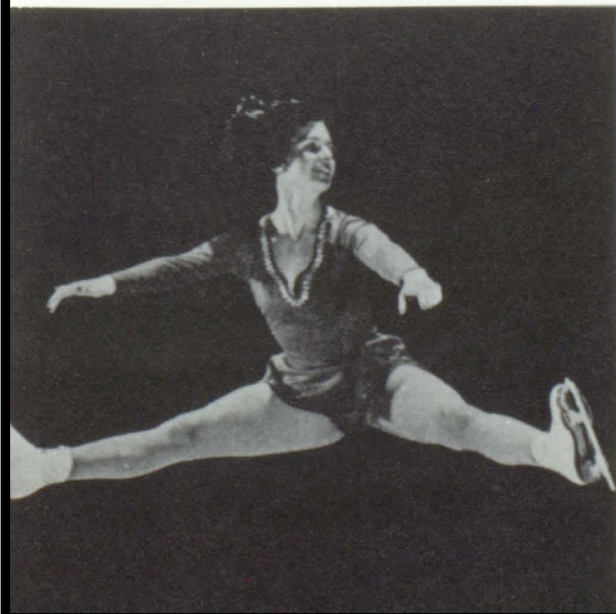

76-77 was an eventful year. Americans were dazzled by the brilliant performances of Olympians Bruce Jenner and Dorothy Hamill and the antics of Mark Fidrych. They said good-bye to one president, Gerald Ford, and welcomed in another, Jimmy Carter.

Flu shots were the order of the day, with mass inoculations against Swine Flu keeping medical personnel busy. Magazines and newspapers told Americans to "roll up their sleeves" and get their shot.

Roots, the famous historical novel about a black family and their ordeal with slavery, inspired thousands to search their backgrounds.

The Tall Ships, a gathering of vessels from nations around the world, made their gala appearance in New York City. In the entertainment world we were swamped with pictures of "Fonzie" and Farrah Fawcett. Americans were amazed by the size of King Kong and the quality of pictures from Mars. On the serious side we saw the death of Gary Gilmore, and Agatha Christie, and the "change" of Rene Richards. Yes— it was a memorable year.

you couldn't block their spirit

The Varsity Football team suffered many ups and downs. Losing 2 games by 1 point and 3 more games by 1 touchdown was disappointing to everyone.

A large number of injuries affected the starting line up throughout the year. However, the squad overcame the disappointments and frustrations and was able to maintain a high quality of competition. They performed reasonably well against the toughest competitors in Oakland County.

Senior Captain, Mike Bauss, showed outstanding performances, and was chosen all league offensive center.

a promise of things to come

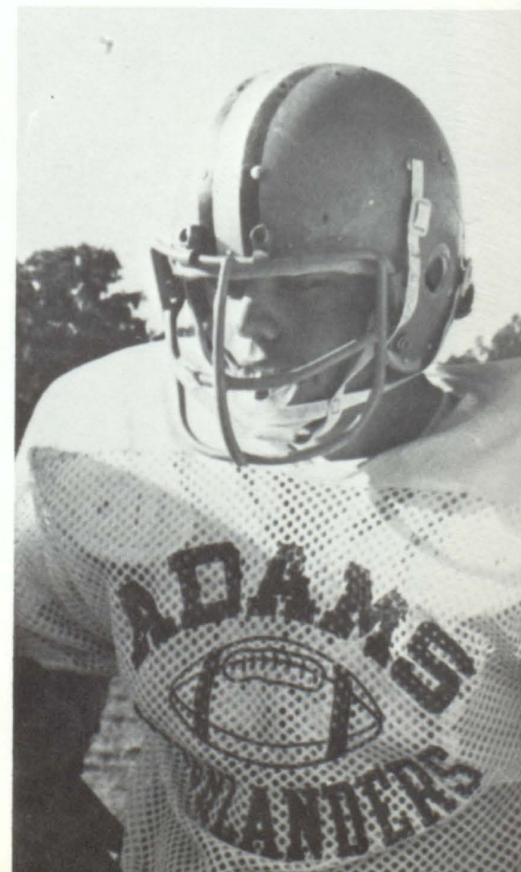

According to head coach Bill Korompay the 1976 J.V. football team was "a team with the most ability I have seen in my five years at Adams." And while the season's record was disappointing the future of this group looked bright.

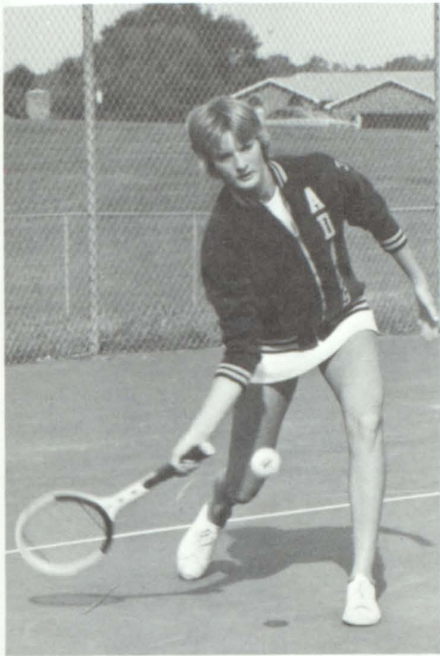

Led by quarterback Tim Dillon, the forward performance was an effective and an interesting show. Dan Burgess, a standout for half the season, was promoted to the varsity team.

The key to the future depended upon the development of a strong defense and most importantly, the development of a positive attitude and a winning tradition.

girls with guts

Captains Ann Schrock and Sue Kandarian led the girls Tennis team to a victory in the Tennis regionals held at Adams this year. When it came time for the regionals the girls had a record of eight wins and three losses. However, during the regionals they came through with a glorious first place.

Coach Aucott, who returned for her second year of coaching the girls, started holding practices for the team during the second week of August.

The whole team did an excellent job, but the ability of seniors Ann Schrock and Sue Kandarian and juniors Beth Gordon and Barb Boghosian seemed to set them apart. The girls Tennis team worked hard and played fast to give Adams a team we could be extremely proud of. After all their hours of practice and all their hard work, the girls of the 1976 Tennis team succeeded in doing just that.

spirit's the game

From the spirit yell to posters, from football to basketball, the cheerleaders were there to lend a voice.

They really did their job this year by promoting school spirit at many of the sporting events. They encouraged enthusiasm and heartiness at all of the football and basketball games by bringing the crowd to a peak of excitement.

In order to give more girls the chance to be cheerleaders, there were separate squads for football and basketball. Mrs. Swoyer, the advisor and sponsor of the 1976-77 cheerleading squads, thought the new arrangement worked out very well. "I think the improvement was for the better", said Mrs. Swoyer.

The captain for the football squad was Dee Claffey, and the squad captain for basketball was Sandy Albrecht. Both have been cheerleaders for 3 years.

Some have said that there is a lack of spirit at Adams. The Highlander cheerleaders have proved them wrong.

in the swim of things

The Girls' Varsity Swim Team dove into a successful season with a 10-3 record, the best ever. Rochester's meet was a season highlight, as Adams drowned the rival team 105 to 67. They drownded their season 2nd in league.

The girls were also the first team to swim in the new pool. Despite red eyes from too much chlorine and cold H₂O, mody felt that having their own pool was a big advantage.

Qualifying for the State Meet were Chris Johnson, Patti Aucott, Betsy Lenhard, Shelly Jahns and Carol Strayer. Carol also swam the 50 free and 100 Fly.

Despite the loss of 7 graduating seniors, including co-captains Dee Dee Pullem and Darlene Hubbard, coaches Connie Becker and Sheri Eschleman look forward to another successful season.

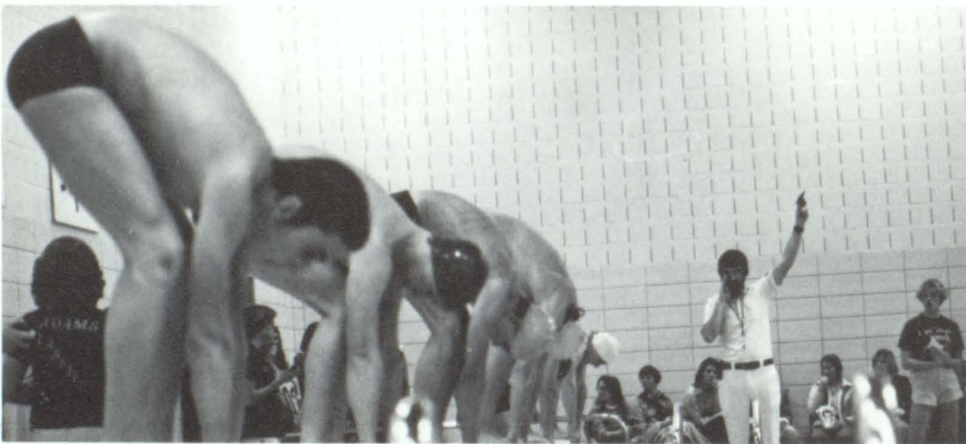

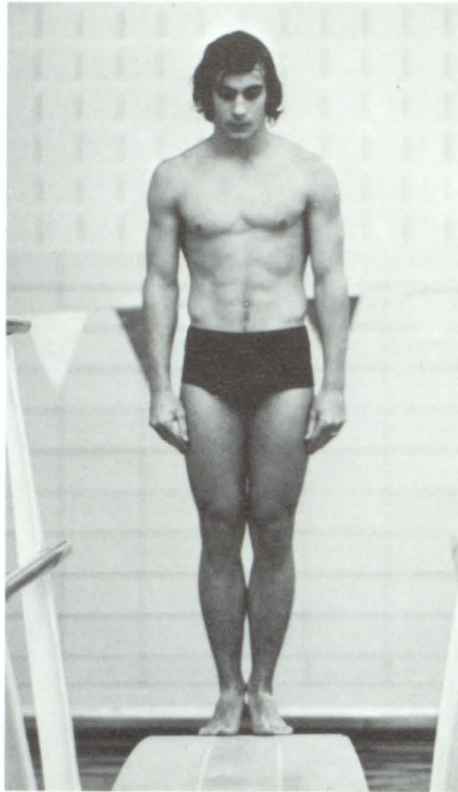

a splashing success

The Golden Wave did it again. They had another successful season, and boast some excellent swimmers.

The Highlander tankers were once again a feared team in the league. They showed their power in such meets as the Rochester Relays and the Oakland County Meet and gave other teams a preview of their strength at the Detroit News Invitational.

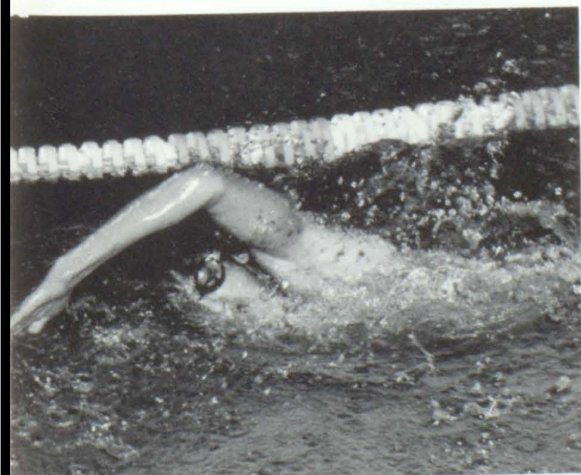

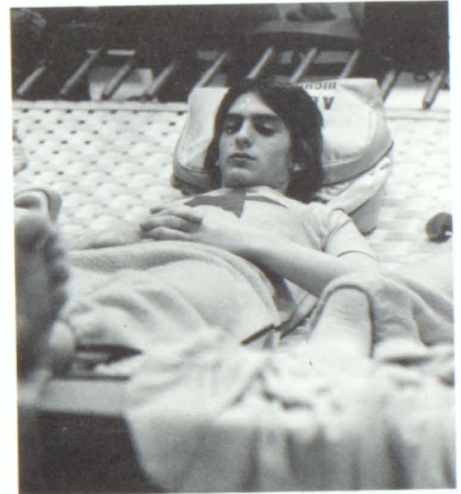

Under the watchful eyes of coaches Jim Steffl and Randy Mikula (both in their first year of coaching here), the team sent several members to the State Meet at Michigan State University, Foreign Exchange Student Wolfram Bratz, as well as Rick Cozad, Tom Hauswirth, Scott Phillips and Rob Hildum were just a few who represented Adams at the State Meet. Actually, Adams qualified in every event but the 500-yard freestyle.

Perhaps one of the most rigorous sports at Adams, the swimmers sleepwalked their way to practices each morning and after school. What dedication!

“cookie, bean and brookie”

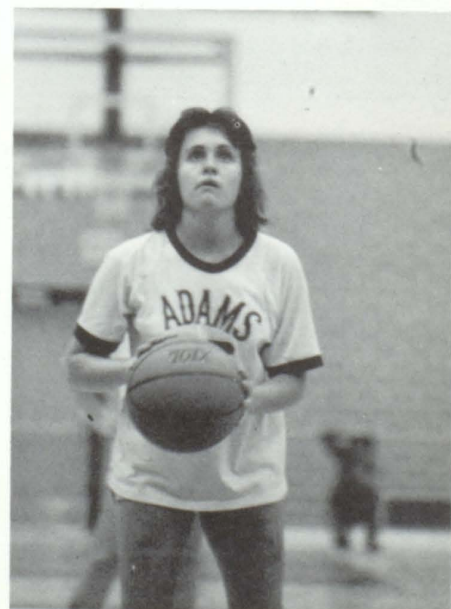

People who came to watch the girls basketball games during the 1976 season may have been confused. Several of the girls on the varsity squad had nicknames: Terri Pedrotty “Peabody”, Eileen McCollough “Bean” and Marybeth Novitsky “Cookie”.

The varsity season had many thrilling games, among these were the Clarkston and Groves games. At Clarkston, Adams girls were down by nine in the fourth quarter, but came back to win the game 44-42. Parent’s night was held October 26 during the Groves game. All of the girls played in the 64-50 victory with Marianne Jones netting 30 points. Mrs. Jenny Sicora was coach and seniors Eileen McCollough and Marianne Jones were Co-captains. Season high scorer was Marianne Jones with high rebounder being shared by Lin Mondt, Cookie Novitsky and Marianne Jones. Other team members were Karen Wyckoff, Brookie Rigney, Sue Monica, Linda Bran, Dawn Bradford, Kathy Stuart, Jan Capella and Michele Bell.

Junior varsity girls basketball was coached by Mr. Ciccirelli. When the sophomores turned out for practice in August they found a different type of game than junior high. Annette Gigliotti and Kathy Gordon were co-captains, other starters were Debby Pedrotty and Molly Todd. These girls work all season towards their goal of filling in the empty spots on the varsity squad the following season.

basketballers played with a full deck

The odds were double or nothing and bets were placed accordingly. Adam's Varsity Basketball team came out with a 10-10 running record.

Cashing in with the total points (excluding tournaments) was Scott Parks, boy wonder. Brian Stoner broke the bank with his astonishing rebounds. Kurt Heuerman and Dan Kruse had Lady Luck behind them all season along with Robin Tooley and Scott Parks, co-captains who were also a couple of high rollers as the team's all leaguers.

Adam's hit the jack pot with "tall" stakes, even still they laid their money on the line when they were up against Lahser.

Coach Parks enjoyed a "Las Vegas" season because he had a winner's circle of a team. He also has a pair of snake eyes focused on the team for next year. Anyway, this year's been great-one more round!

b'ballers rampage

Even though they were a short team, the J.V. basketball players had lots of muscle to show the other teams who was boss. Coach Orchard's squad finished their season winning more than half their games, and especially relished their victory over Dondero.

Tim Dillon was high scorer for the season, and played the guard position. Other noteworthy players were Scott Barnaby, Tom Burns, Shawn Smith and Mitch Aiello.

Perhaps one of the most "together" teams ever to reach Adams, with one of the most positive attitudes, this bunch should be a great supplement to the Varsity team next year.

tumblers triumph

Who tumbled their way into the most successful season ever? Why, the girls gymnastics team.

The biggest accomplishment of the season had to be the defeat the gals handed Rochester, a traditional rival. But Adams' winning record could not be overlooked. The gals had their best season yet, winning over two-thirds of their meets under the direction of new coach, Miss Gillies.

Foreign exchange student Annette Knoll was an added bonus to the team, as she competed on the uneven parallel bars. In addition to Annette, gymnasts from all three grades were entered in competition.

The Highlander tumblers suffered many bumps and bruises during practice, but their most successful season made any pain worthwhile.

golfers swing into third place

The Highlander Golf team had quite a successful season this year with their final record, 11 wins and 5 losses.

There were a lot of underclassmen playing this year, and in spite of this disadvantage they did better this year than they had in the past. Last year they took 7th place in the state, and this year they were tied for third place.

The team was supported by the red headed, 4 time letterman, John Spall, with stars Bob Klanow and Paul Solverson backing him up. The team took a 4th place in the league.

This year's cross country team was made up of sixteen dedicated runners. Led by Coach Gierke the boys practiced from 2:45 to 5:00, five, sometimes six days a week. The guys started practicing August fifteenth and kept up their heavy practice schedule until the middle of November when their season came to an end.

All the guys on the cross country team worked hard and ran well. But Coach Gierke felt that by the end of the season, senior Blake Taylor had emerged as a leader and deserved special recognition for his accomplishments.

dedication leads to success

The girls volleyball team was at it again this year, spending five nights a week either practicing or playing the games.

The nine girl varsity team was led by Captain Terri Pedrotty and Coach Mrs. Dee Akerros, who was coaching volleyball at Adams for her third consecutive year.

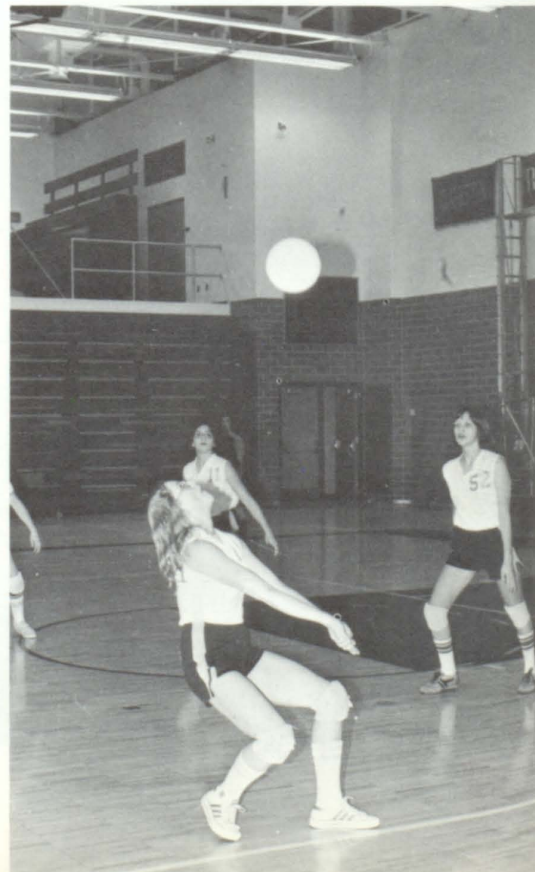

The team, whose season started in December and ended in late February, practiced one and a half hours two or three times a week. They played games both home and away and played eight league games in all.

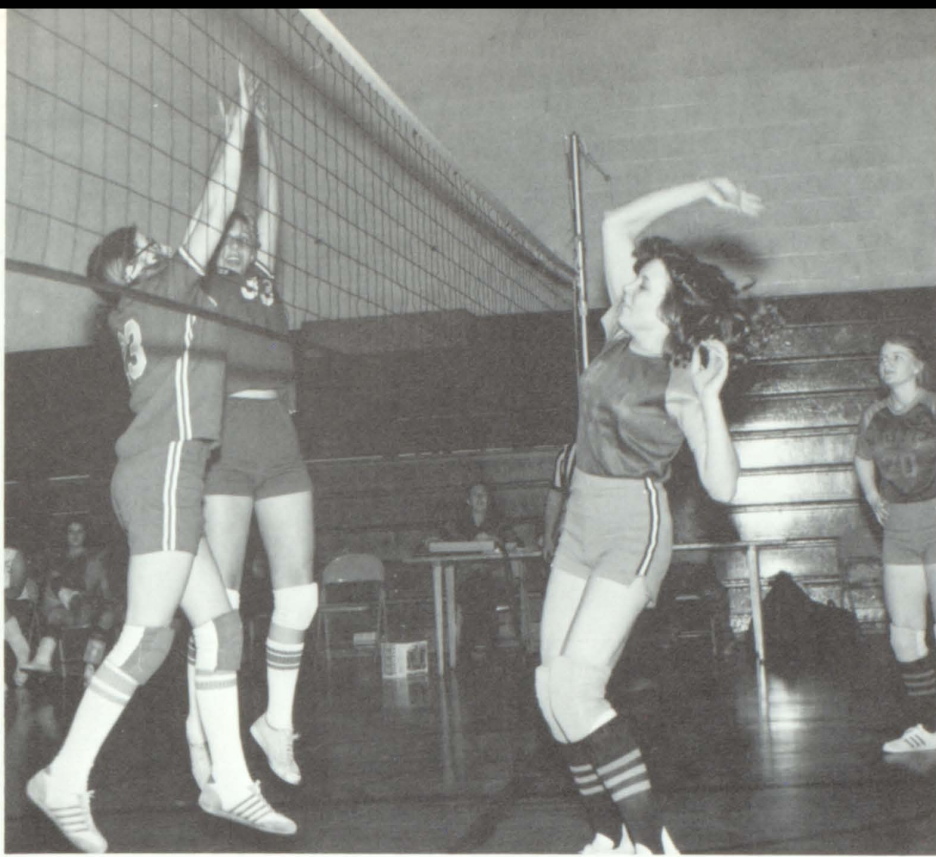

The junior varsity team also had nine members. They too practiced one and a half hours a day and played as many games as the varsity.

The junior varsity did a good job and are prepared for next year.

Wrestling is a rough sport, but as usual the Adams wrestlers were able to handle it. Helped by their coaches Mr. Bandelean and Mr. Niedzwiecki the guys learned the art of wrestling as well as the art of having fun. While the guys were in training, they learned all kinds of different moves, and ways to stop their opponent. Wrestling is a good way to learn these movements because the guys are wrestling with someone the same size. No matter what division. The guys participated in meets and tournaments and did well.

“bamboo busters”

From the beginning of November to the middle of February there were approximately 40 people running around with bruised knees. These black and blue members of the student body were the Boys and Girls Ski Teams. The bruises were caused by taking the corners too sharp and hitting the gates. They really earned the name “Bamboo Busters”. These dedicated members practiced long hours to prepare for their season. They began by doing calcs and running indoors, then they hit the slopes.

Of the 43 team members, only 6 girls and 6 boys competed in the meets. The top 6 were Jim Fox, Mark Rosalik, Chuck Kupsy, Dave Hunstad, Scott Heizer, Ted Kosik, Sue Kandarian, Christie Rosalik, Karen Barnes, Caroline Fox and Ann Schrock. The girls team finished 2nd in divisionals and 5th in regionals. Even though the team didn't make it to state, Sue Kandarian qualified as an individual and placed 6th in slalom. The boys team finished 4th in divisionals and 6th in regionals, proving that hard work pays off.

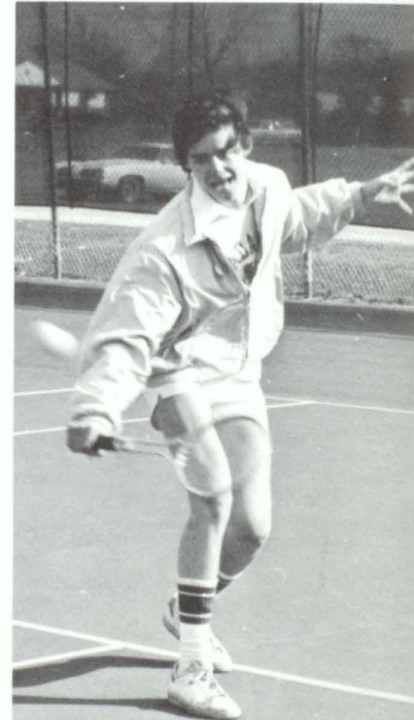

tennis is their racket

As the spring fever set in the bones of many students at Adams, tennis rackets were pulled from the shelves and the outdoor tennis courts began to fill. Beginning in March, the boys tennis team filled the courts and started practicing for a competitive and promising season.

Mr. Rosenberg, who returned to coach the Adams team after a spring without sports, was very happy to see the interest that was in this year's tennis team. Joining Mr. Rosenberg again this year were four returning seniors, Kurt Heurman, Greg Brusstar, Chip Mitchell and John Spall. They did well this year in the tough competition they were up against. Their long and rough schedule helped them in their league and regional matches.

a real swinging club

The girls' golf team got off to a swinging start this year. They had seven girls join the team, which is more than any other year.

The golfers were yet another team affected by last year's millage cuts. Seniors Becky Snell and Kathy Brook were the only members who had had previous experience golfing for Adams.

Mrs. Talley expected a fairly successful season. She predicted her team would make state, due to the high-quality of her golfers.

L to R: K. Brooks, B. Snell, J. Snell, J. Opanowicz, L. Stridde, K. Olson, Coach Talley.

It promised to be an unpredictable season. Due to millage cuts the year before, the Adams Varsity baseball team was a little behind the rest of the schools in the Metro-Suburban Athletic Association league. But it didn't seem to bother our mighty Highlanders.

Mr. Guerrieri coached the team this year. He has had experience in the past coaching J.V. teams here at Adams, and other outside of school.

Captains this year were seniors Steve McMahon and Brad Watkins. Other returning veterans of the baseball world were Steve Guzdial, Ken Snow, Tom Caldwell, Eric Krause, Dave Wolff and Brian Stoner.

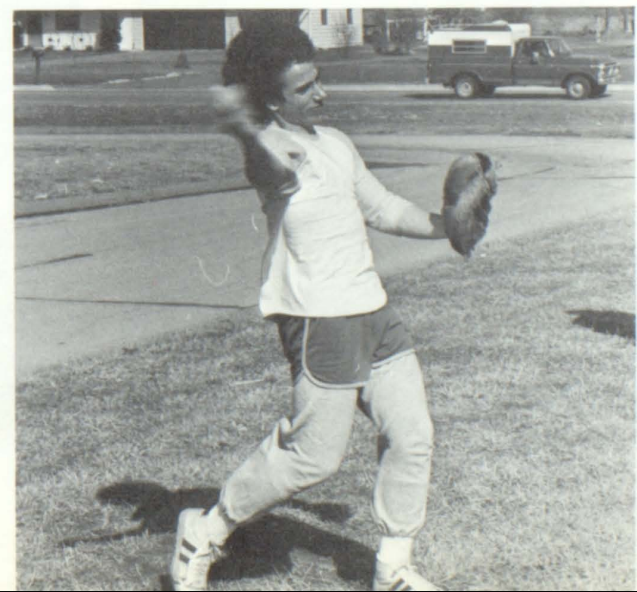

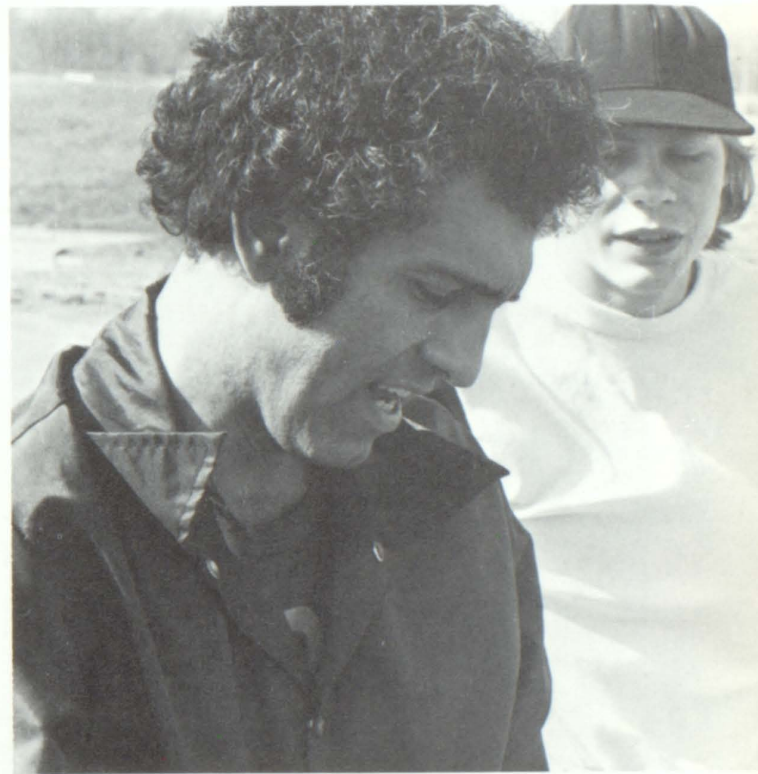

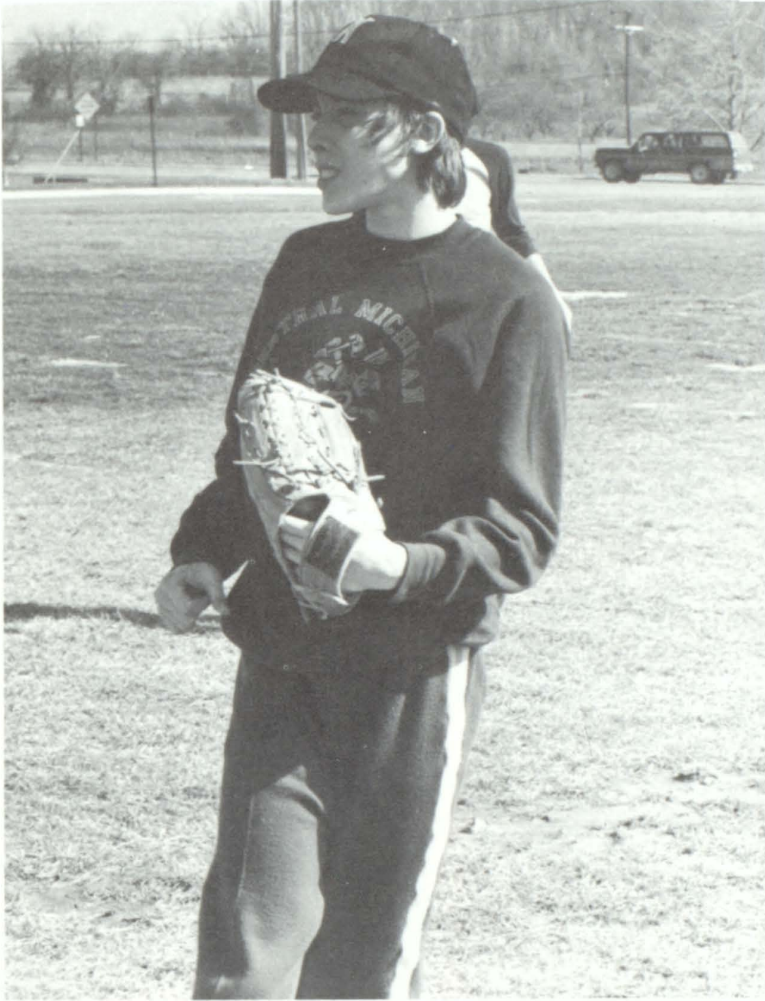

The Booster Club came to their rescue, as they provided money towards a scoreboard and other equipment necessary for a first-class team.

And with all the upcoming talent, Mr. Guerrieri should not have trouble producing a first-rate team next year.

j.v. baseball — new coach, new team

The Bird's the word. Or so said the J.V. Baseball team. They had a new coach this year—Mr. Mike Barker, the director of the summer baseball program in Rochester.

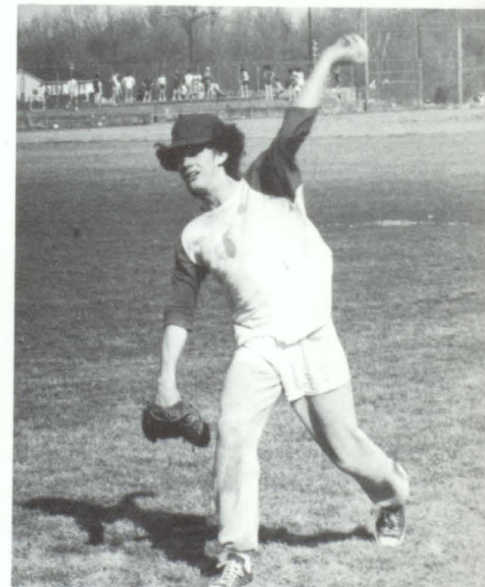

Although the coaches were disappointed with the small number of guys that tried out for the team, Adams still boasted a darned good baseball team.

Much effort went into practices this year. Batting, pitching, and catching were practiced indoors until the weather warmed up and the fields were ready. The team usually played games at least twice a week.

Some promising ballplayers for next year's varsity team included Mark Jackson, Steve Valentine, Tim Dillon, Scott Harris and Paul Cracknell, to name a few. Are you paying attention Mr. Guerrieri?

Hup, two, three, four! Look alive men. Pump those biceps, stretch those quads! Sloppy, sloppy! Such is the rugged life of Adams High's specimens of near physical perfection, otherwise known as the Marine Corps Fitness team.

Fifteen guys endure feats beyond physical endurance in order to uphold their last year's status of 11th in the nation. Returning members were seniors Tim Acton, Lyndon Schneider, and Steven Guzdial. These three proved that it is the quality of practices and not the quantity that speaks for the team. Each of these guys proved themselves valuable to the team as they strove to make their competition a successful group effort.

Their moment of supreme payoff was to come in April when 16 finalists competed for the team with Washington D.C. gleaming in their eyes as their goal.

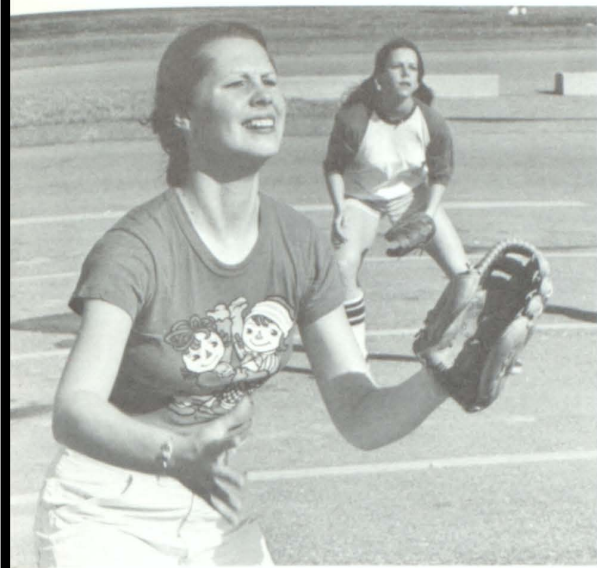

softballers show their stuff

Girls softball had a unique experience this year, two coaches. The two coaches were Mrs. Pollard, who was previously a girls softball coach at West, and Mr. Berube who coached softball at Adams two years ago. It was decided to have two coaches this year in order to help rebuild the softball program since there was no spring sports last year.

Coach Pollard explained though, that this is only for one year and next year they will return to a one coach system again.

When the softball coaches had their first meeting in late February, forty-seven interested girls came out for the team. However, that number was cut by the time the team started practicing in March.

co-ed track . . .

This year the girls and boys track team combined together to form a tougher and stronger team. They began practice in March to get ready for a winning season.

Head coach this year was Mr. Gierke and assisting him throughout the season were Mr. Ciccirelli and Mr. Glenn. They saw an advantage in bringing the teams together because the boys and girls could support each other and work together to form a successful team. Working with the boys, the girls were able to build their ability as good runners, the boys were able to get the support and enthusiasm from the girls to reach their goals.

... your pace or mine?

Money difficulties did not hold the track team back. They ran combined meets as well as individual races. The races lasted longer but the competition was worth it.

The Track Team was another spring sport that was affected by last year's millage cuts. Due to not having track in 1976 there were few experienced runners on the team, but everyone tried hard to make this season worthwhile.

Mr. Gierke added a special comment about this years Track Team. "Enthusiasm is being shown by all in a rebuilding year, reflected in the large number of eager recruits." The Track Team had many sophomores and juniors returning next year to finish the race they started last year.

old days—good times we remember

As our senior year draws to a close, we will be closing the door on a portion of our lives. The door will never be closed completely, however. It will always be open enough to allow memories to slip through. When we are away from Adams, either pursuing a career, furthering our education or running a household, there will be incidents that will remind us of our high school days. We will recall the good times we had with friends and chuckle about the silly, crazy things we did. We may even blush while remembering things that should have remained forgotten.

The class of 1977 was a competitive class both on the playing field and in the classroom. Senior athletes made headlines and excelled in everything they tried. Academically we accumulated a high grade point average for the whole class. Over one third of our class carried a 3.0 average or better.

Led by President Terry O'Connor, Vice-president Kim Groener, Secretary Karen Elmer and Treasurer Mary Zukowski, the class accomplished much.

We established ourselves as fantastic salespeople while peddling candybars, M&M's and peanut butter cups. Our main goal was to raise enough money to pay for the graduation ceremonies. Class sponsor, Mrs. Talley, helped us achieve our goal while working closely with the class.

Being the last class of freshmen to graduate from Adams and the first class to graduate over 400 students can partially describe the '77 seniors. But this barely touches on the real description of our class. Through our four years here, we have developed a closeness towards each other and have learned to work together as one. This unity helped up to advance as far as we have.

This year has been full of decisions concerning our future and now, the future is here. Adams has provided us with a "home away from home" for four years and now its time to break away. Years from now, after we have established ourselves elsewhere, Adams will provide only memories.

Kim Groener - valedictorian

This year's valedictorian, Kim Groener, was truly of the leader classification. In case you missed the previous page she is a senior class officer besides the academic (grade point average) leader. Beyond these it was Kim who, last year, started the wall mural program which caught on in such a big way this year.

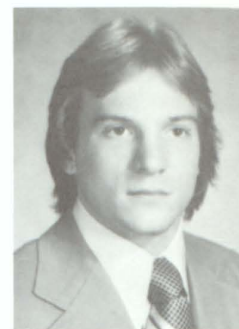

Kim had several scholarship offers to select from and was leaning toward Michigan State or Hillsdale. While her plans weren't definite (she had thought of going into teaching) a degree in Business Administration seemed likely. Regardless of which school or curriculum she chooses, she will unquestionably, again be a leader.

This year's group of seniors graduating with great distinction was unsurpassed by previous years' accomplishments. This was the largest group ever to attain a 3.5 or better grade point average for four years of high school work. They accomplished much more than pure "book worming". They were people who were involved in the total program which Adams had to offer. They lead in sports, extra curricular activities, and co-curricular activities. As a group this years seniors of great distinction will be tough to top.

the junior class, a step higher

Soon to be the seniors of Adams High School, the junior class has come along way. Classes like American History and American Thought, and the B.G. Bowl game were just a few of the new experiences many of the students went through.

This year the junior class officers were President Don Caldwell, Vice President Lynn Huzzard, Secretary Lisa Marcoff, and Treasurer Barb Boghosian. They all worked hard to make the Junior class something to be proud of. They did a pretty good job. The juniors produced the winning homecoming skit and built one of the finest floats.

The junior class has also come forth with many fine athletes. This year both junior boys and girls were able to compete at the Varsity level.

This years junior class can be proud of the achievements made this year and can look forward to the goals of next year.

sophomores step into the hallowed halls

They finally made it! The sophomore class showed Adams just how powerful they were during Spirit Week this year. Some 500 sophs made the walls of A.H.S. tremble during the Homecoming spirit yell (but they couldn't beat the seniors) and then slaved and worked to produce the winning float entitled, "Blaze Their Saddles," taken from the movie "Blazing Saddles." This class also captured the John Wayne walk and talk alike contest, another Homecoming Week festivity.

This is also the largest class ever to attend Adams. The sophomores were a dominating sight when seen together at pep assemblies.

Leading this exuberant class was President, Steve Padilla, V.P., Greg Benson, Secretary, Carolyn Fox, and Treasurer, Brian Tallman.

This class can say good-bye to Sophomore Composition, Biology and Sociology, but can look forward to two more years at Adams. As juniors, it'll be American History, Chemistry, American Thought . . . and P.S.A.T. tests!

All things considered the class of '79 is a promising one . . . from sports to academics, here is a group of future leaders.
